

ABANDON HOPE FOR SECRETARY GOOD

NAME FREEHOLDERS FOR SPRING VALLEY ELECTION CONTEST

Must Decide Whether Written Votes Were Proper.

Appointment of J. P. Zell, Yellow Springs; William Conley, Cedarville, and O. A. Spahr, Xenia, to constitute the jury of three disinterested freeholders who will hear evidence submitted at the hearing in Probate Court Tuesday morning contesting reelection of C. A. Sollers for a fourth term as mayor of Spring Valley village, is announced by Judge S. C. Wright. The hearing is scheduled to begin at 10 o'clock.

Whether, in the event voters write in the names of an additional candidate for public office on the ballot at an election, it is necessary also to mark an X opposite the name of the candidate, is the question to be decided at the hearing.

It is said that the state election law, which specifies that the X must be marked, is in conflict with an opinion of the state supreme court, which has ruled that the mere writing of the name of an additional candidate is sufficient evidence showing the intention of the voter to cast his ballot for that person.

GRAND JURY PROBES CONTRACT FRAUDS

CANTON, O., Nov. 18.—The Stark County grand jury is scheduled to resume its investigation today into the contracts for the equipment of the Molly Stark Tuberculosis Sanitarium.

PAIR SEEKS TO ABSOLVE MOONEY IN BOMBING

Mrs. George Monroe, left, of Bellaire, O., and A. L. Smith, right, her brother, may bring about the release of Tom Mooney, labor leader, serving a life term in San Quentin prison, California, convicted of participation in the San Francisco preparedness day bombing in 1916. Mrs. Monroe and Smith declare that their brother, Lewis Smith, who died in Cleveland in 1922, confessed to them that he had been paid to commit the outrage. Center photos show Mooney at the time he entered San Quentin, above, and as he appears today.

Campaign To Fill Xenia's Community Chest Starts Tuesday; Smith Talks

TUESDAY morning it will be "over the top" for the opening of the 1929 Xenia Community Chest campaign.

Not a suggestion, not a hint of defeat is heard anywhere in the ranks of those whose task it will be to raise the city's standard high on the hills of civic virtue.

After weeks of preparation, Edwin Galloway, general chairman of the second annual campaign, and his aides announced Monday that, insofar as they are able to ascertain, every obstacle to the success of the drive has been eliminated.

As things now stand, citizens of Xenia are asked merely to do their share toward caring for the helpless and unfortunate within the city's gates and also support character-building agencies, and they may rest assured that except for legitimate expense of the campaign, every cent contributed to the 1929 fund will be used for that purpose—and that purpose alone next year.

The personnel of the 1929 campaign is impressive, in that it contains the names of scores of men and women who have played prominent parts in the economic, social and cultural advancement of the city. A glance at the list inspires confidence in the entire project.

A final campaign rally to which all chest workers and all others interested are invited to attend, will be held in the assembly room in the basement of the Court House promptly at 7:15 o'clock Monday evening with Attorney Howard Smith, prominent Dayton lawyer and former Ohio Kiwanis governor, delivering the principal address. Afterward the speakers, numbering nearly 140, who will make a house-to-house canvass of the city starting Tuesday, will receive their final instructions and will be issued cards and receipt books.

SINCLAIR WILL GET FREEDOM FROM JAIL WEDNESDAY NIGHT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Harry F. Sinclair, the oil magnate, started on the last lap today of his long jail sentence.

Jail doors will swing outward Wednesday night for Sinclair. His nine-month term, with time off for good behavior, expires November 21, and the oil king is expected to lose no time in getting out of Washington with its distasteful memories. He probably will catch a midnight train for New York.

Sinclair has had a somewhat enjoyable time "kidding" the three Washington Times reporters, who are serving forty-five-day sentences for contempt of court, growing out of their refusal to reveal to the district grand jury their sources of information concerning vice conditions in the capital.

The oil magnate's long stay in jail appears to have benefited him physically. The plain fare and regular hours have reduced somewhat his waistline. He is lighter and more rugged—so much so, in fact, that a few days ago in a friendly sparring contest with one of the reporters Sinclair scored a technical knockout.

In failing the reporter struck the edge of a cot, raising a sizeable lump on the jaw.

MARKET IS NORMAL—OPENS IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Just to show how normal it was, the market opened irregularly, with only small variations from Friday's close—a typical normal Monday opening.

Even group issues were divided as to a definite trend, but it appeared that the upgrade had the edge.

For example, Anaconda opened at 82 1/2, down 7/8, while its market shadow, Kennecott, opened at 66 7/8, up 2 3/8.

U. S. Steel was down 3/4 at 163 1/2; Chesapeake and Ohio up 3 at 185; American Tel. and Tel. down 7/8 at 219; Radio up 1/2 at 33; Sears Roebuck up 1 1/4 at 94 1/4; Montgomery Ward down 3/8 at 57.

Alexis Rykoff and Michael Tomsky, also members of the bureau, were warned if they continued opposition to the Communist party they would be dealt with severely.

STORIES OF SISTER AND BROTHER PROVE MOONEY INNOCENT

Dead Man Accused Of Bomb-Throwing By Relatives

BELLAIRE, O., Nov. 18.—The stories that were told by two eastern Ohio mountaineers and which were substantiated by two others, and which tended to clear Thomas J. Mooney, "life-terminer" in a California prison, of any connection with the Preparedness Day bombing outrage in San Francisco, July 22, 1916, have received an unusual corroboration.

Louis Smith, ex-convict, purported former German spy, and "soldier of fortune," has been named as the real perpetrator of the bombing which caused the death of ten persons and which resulted in the injury of two score more.

Mrs. Dora E. Monroe, sister of Smith, and wife of George Monroe, a mountaineer, who claims he has several notches in his gun, declared in an affidavit, which is in possession of International News Service, that her brother, Louis, had confessed to her that he was the one "who threw the bomb into that crowd."

Thomas Mooney, Smith told his sister, according to the affidavit, "was not even present."

A. L. Smith, of Wheeling, W. Va., a brother of Louis, who described his brother as a "liar, a jailbird and a thief," in a signed statement which is also in possession of International News Service, substantiated Mrs. Monroe's story, but later repudiated his statement.

When this writer attempted to interview him at his humble home, his son, who called his father "Pap," answered the door and threatened to shoot the writer with a shotgun.

It was learned authoritatively, however, that A. L. Smith denied his story because he is afraid he and his wife might be subpoenaed to appear in California. His wife is a peaked, lanky woman, and sickly. She could never stand the trip to California, relatives declared.

The Monroe home is in the isolated "Valley of Nine," so-called because of two tragedies which occurred there, each of which claimed nine lives. One was a mine disaster and the other a flood. To reach the Monroe shack, it was necessary to park the automobile about a mile distant and follow a rough path and ford two creeks through a wilderness valley.

There, in a lean-to-attic kitchen—the unpainted house has no sitting room or parlor—Mrs. Monroe repeated the story which was told in her affidavit, stating that her brother, Louis Smith, was guilty of the bombing outrage.

The woman, who keeps her house scrupulously clean, and who at one time last week threatened newspapermen with a shotgun, remembered vaguely of other bombings but could state no specific details.

Ott Monroe, a son, corroborated his mother's statement, as did another son, Joe. The latter said he was present when Louis Smith told his mother about the bombing.

"Uncle Lou said over there," he said, pointing and then he designated where his mother and himself had been seated on that spring day in 1921 when Louis is said to have confessed to the San Francisco bombing.

Accompanying the writer, was Chief of Police Frank Moran, of Bellaire.

He said it was the code of the mountaineer to keep silent about other people's affairs and ascribed this as the reason that the stories are first being told after Mooney has served thirteen years in prison.

Mrs. Monroe said she had kept her brother's secret for these many years because of a promise to him. Louis Smith, she said, died in Cleveland in 1922. He was married. She did not know the address of his wife.

A. L. Smith, in his statement, said that his brother had been arrested in connection with the activities of German spies on the west coast. The statement follows:

FEAR FOR LIFE OF WAR SECRETARY

SWORN IN AS SECY OF WAR, MARCH, 1929 IN CONGRESS 1912

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The characteristic views of James W. Good, secretary of war in President Hoover's cabinet, whose condition has been reported serious following an operation for appendicitis at Washington, D. C. He is shown as a member of congress from Iowa, in 1912; as Herbert Hoover's campaign manager in 1928; being sworn in as secretary of war in March, 1929, and at his first official review of troops.

BOTTLES LOST-UP GOES MILK

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—If the American people would refrain from using milk bottles for jam, kerosene, paint and other household uses, they would save a loss of $20,000,000 in the nation's annual bill for milk bottles amounting to $30,000,000, dairy experts of the department of agriculture said today.

Last year in one large city, junk men picked off the city dumps 20,000,000 milk bottles which had been thrown away, and these bottles had a value of more than $1,000,000.

These practices, the experts say, add materially to the consumer's milk bill.

MUSKINGUM RIVER REPORTED RISING

ZANESVILLE, O., Nov. 18.—The Muskingum River here has risen four feet in the last twenty-four hours. No alarm is being felt today, however.

The river stood at 17.2 feet this morning. Flood stage is twenty-five feet. It is expected to rise to more than twenty feet.

Lowlands at White Cottage and Dresden are inundated but no damage has resulted.

AUTO KILLS GIRL

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 18.—Miss Mary Warren, 26, is dead here today as the result of an auto accident which occurred at a street intersection yesterday. Miss Warren's death brought Hamilton County's death list up to 139 for the year.

BELLHOPS RUN DRUG STORE

Thrift Club Invests In Akron Business As Financial Side Line.

AKRON, O., Nov. 18.—The newest and perhaps the most unique business organization in Akron today is composed of hotel bellhops who have bought out and started operation of a drug store here.

SINKING STEADILY SAY PHYSICIANS AS DEATH IS EXPECTED

Complications After Operation Too Much For Official

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—All hope of saving the life of Secretary of War James W. Good was abandoned shortly after 7 o'clock this morning.

The physicians watching by his bedside, estimated he might live a few hours, but they were expecting death momentarily.

"There is no hope," was the word from the sickroom. Shortly before 9 a. m., the secretary appeared to be nearing the end. He was sinking steadily and was having difficulty in breathing.

Mrs. Good and her two sons, James W. Jr., and Robert Edmond, were at the bedside. Mrs. Good, worn out by her five days' vigil, was somewhat unsteady.

At 10 a. m. it was stated at the hospital that "death is momentarily expected."

Administration of oxygen alone kept Secretary Good alive through last night.

This morning, he was barely conscious, and the physicians treating him awaited the end at any moment despite the heroic measures to which they had resorted.

The 63-year-old cabinet officer had expended all of his reserve strength during the last twenty-four hours in a vain effort to rally from the many complications that have set in since his operation last Wednesday for appendicitis, and the blood poisoning that has overrun his system seemed to have the upper hand.

No formal bulletin on the war secretary's condition has been issued since five o'clock yesterday afternoon. The doctors confined all their efforts to retaining that one flickering spark of life. The last official word said merely that Good was making "a valiant fight."

His age, however, weighed in the balance against him.

The immediate family—Mrs. Good and her two sons—maintained a despondent vigil through the night. They had been told that death was only a matter of hours.

TWO SCHOOLS WILL DROP WITTENBERG

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 18.—International News Service definitely learned today that two universities in the Buckeye Athletic Association, will not schedule Wittenberg, another "Big Six" school, for a gridiron tilt next year. This indicates that Wittenberg will be dropped from that conference.

The faculties and coaches of the two schools are adverse to meeting the Springfield team on the football field, it was learned.

Charges that Wittenberg had subsidized athletes were made at the annual meeting of conference officials last year.

At that time, a couple of schools wanted to sever relations with Wittenberg but upon promises that Wittenberg would "clean house" they agreed to play the Lutherans. But the two schools will stand pat on their intentions not to schedule Wittenberg next year, it was authoritatively learned today.

SIXTEEN ESCAPE IN COUNTY JAIL PLOT

MADISONVILLE, Ky., Nov. 18.—County and state authorities are searching today for sixteen prisoners who yesterday made a successful prison break from the county bastille here by drilling through a 12-inch brick wall.

One prisoner, William Pillow, a negro, was captured immediately following the jail delivery and was returned to the jail.

The nine white and six colored men who gained freedom brought the total of men who have escaped from the local bastille to twenty-four since November 2.

MAY BAR FILMS

SAO PAULO, Brazil, Nov. 18.—Each exhibition of an English or other foreign-language talkie would be punishable by a fine of $60, according to a measure now before the city council here. The public has been so taken with the American talkies that the councilman who introduced the measure was alarmed at the growth of English among the natives since the introduction of the vocal films.

DIAMOND TRADE HIT

ANTWERP, Nov. 18.—The recent Wall Street slump is being blamed here for the present critical condition in the diamond trade. Thirteen big diamond plants were expected to shut down today and many expert workers face idleness.

MONTH OF NOVEMBER BEST FOR PLANTING SHRUBS IS REPORT

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 18.—November is the ideal month for planting shrubs, and plantings projected for any time during the next year should be finished by the end of this month if possible, says Victor H. Ries, extension specialist in floriculture for the Ohio State University here.

It is better to buy vigorous shrubs, two or even three years old, is Ries' advice. "They will have better root systems and will give quicker results and surer results under poor growing conditions, than the younger plants," Ries asserts that any shrub which can be grown in Ohio can be and should be purchased from the nurseries in the state.

He urges that the shrubs be planted as soon as they are received, or else unpacked and the roots completely buried in a trench. When it comes to the actual planting, it is necessary to dig a hole large enough so that all the roots on the plant may be spread out comfortably. "Fill in the best soil around the roots and stamp firmly so there are no air holes. If the soil is very poor it may be advisable to obtain good soil and fill in around the roots with that. The poorer and harder the soil, the larger the hole which should be dug. The plants should be set in the ground to the same depth at which they are growing in the nursery. Unless the root system is adequate, it may be well to remove about one-third of the top of the shrub after it is planted."

Barnyard manure, if available, makes a beneficial mulch applied liberally over the surface of the ground. Peat moss, straw, or leaves may also be used, but should be supplemented in the spring with commercial fertilizer, says Ries.

PLANE TALK

(Written expressly for International News Service)

15. Climbs and Glides
As the pilot becomes more familiar with his ship and engine, he will come to know the speed at which it climbs best. This will be the speed at which it will ascend swiftest and strongest but not too fast to lose flying speed and stall.

Climbing upward from a take-off, it is the best practice to rev up the engine to its maximum r.p.m.s because of the proximity of the ground. Once the plane reaches safer altitudes, the engine may be throttled to cruising speed which is all necessary for ascending still higher.

Gliding is a maneuver which even the experienced pilot may well keep practicing for it is a preliminary to all landings. In gliding, the motor is throttled down and the nose of the plane permitted to drop sufficiently far below the horizon to give it flying speed slightly higher than the landing speed. This speed will be attained slowly or quickly according to the gentleness or steepness of the glide.

To turn in a glide, the plane should first attain greater speed than is needed for a straight glide. Control in straight climbs and glides is effected fundamentally by the elevator alone although some slight corrective use of rudder and ailerons is also frequently required.

(Dives and stalls will be the subject of tomorrow's article of Plane Talk).

COMMUNITY CHEST IN YELLOW SPRINGS AMOUNTS TO $1,617

The second annual Community Chest fund drive conducted in Yellow Springs and Miami Twp, ended Saturday night with the final report showing contributions amounting to $1,617, which exceeded by $17 the goal set for the campaign.

The drive lasted six days and was held under the direction of Carl Drake, chairman of the campaign committee.

Eight charitable and character-building agencies will derive support from the fund in 1930. They are: Parent-Teacher Association, Social Service League, American Red Cross, Colored Welfare League, Boy Scouts, Colored Nursery School, Library Association and the Greene County Health League.

Quota raised during the drive just ended is an increase of $600 over last year's goal.

An Ailing CHILD

Are you prepared to render first aid and quick comfort the moment your youngster has an upset of any sort? Could you do the right thing—immediately—though the emergency came without warning—perhaps tonight?

Castoria is a mother's standby at such times. There is nothing like it in emergencies, and nothing better for everyday use. For a sudden attack of colic, or the gentle relief of constipation; to allay a feverish condition, or to soothe a fretful baby that can't sleep. This pure vegetable preparation is always ready to ease an ailing youngster. It is just as harmless as the recipe on the wrapper reads. If you see Chas. H. Fletcher's signature, it is genuine Castoria. It is harmless to the smallest infant; doctors will tell you so.

You can tell from the recipe on the wrapper how mild it is, and how good for little systems. But continue with Castoria until a child is grown.

The World And All

BY CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

OF MANY THINGS

Will the women accept the decrees of the manufacturers as to wearing long skirts? That seems to be the chief topic of conversation among the women I meet and overhear. Many say they'll never consent to look old and foolish just to please the people who make cloth. Others say it's time we were going back to those graceful long skirts. Well, I have a scheme that would solve the problem perfectly. Let those who want long skirts wear them, and those who want short skirts wear 'em short. Why should all women dress alike, anyhow? Short skirts are punishment to women who have unshapely legs, and long skirts make many other women unhappy and discontented.

Recently I met Governor Al Smith at a literary tea. He was the central figure. The publishers were celebrating Al's new book, "Up to Now," and it was Al's first taste of literary celebrity. He took it gracefully, indeed. I talked to him briefly of the first time I met him. It was on the night of his first election to the office of governor, when I went to interview him for a press association. Of course he remembered, and added details to my description of the night's festivities.

At another party recently Jim

Stanley sang and Fred Keating performed magic tricks. Magic is the entertainment that's never lost its charm for children. My two daughters will never forget that Keating plucked handfuls of money out of their hair and shoved a cigar through their heads without their feeling it.

A doctor thinks he can control cancer. He's not sure, because he has only mice and guinea pigs to experiment upon. Too bad the laws do not permit him to verify his experiments by using the three bank bandits and murderers recently convicted in Lamar, Colo. These fellows wantonly slew a doctor whom they kidnaped and forced to dress their wounds. How appropriate it would be to make them pay back their debt to medicine and humanity by submitting to experiments that might save millions of lives. Instead, the useless convicts will be submitted to the barbarous experiment of hanging or electrocution. Waste of good laboratory material!

COUNTY'S FIRST VICTIM OF HUNTING SEASON DIES HERE

Greene County's first fatality of the rabbit hunting season was recorded when Clement Hampton, 17, living on the Clifton Pike, near Yellow Springs, died at McCallan Hospital at 7:45 a. m. Sunday from injuries suffered last Friday morning.

Blood poisoning which developed in a gunshot wound in the left thigh, accidentally self-inflicted, and shock, caused his death.

The accident occurred not far from the youth's home, Hampton and several companions were hunting rabbits. It is said Hampton was carrying a double-barreled shot gun with both hammers cocked. After firing at a rabbit from a tree stump he stepped off to follow it, lost his balance and fell. The second barrel was discharged and the load of buck shot entered the inner side of the left thigh near the hip, shattering the bone and badly lacerating the leg.

Hampton was a stepson of David Sutton with whom he made his home on the Harry Sutton farm, Clifton Pike. Funeral services will be conducted at the Sutton residence Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Interment will take place in Glen Forest Cemetery, Yellow Springs.

TRAFFIC OFFICER

TALKS ON SAFETY

TO SCHOOL PUPILS

First step in the organization of a "Safety Patrol" among pupils of the Xenia public schools was taken Monday morning when Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, gave safety talks before grade school children at the McKinley, Spring Hill, Orient Hill and Lincoln buildings.

Pupils designated by school authorities to act as junior traffic officers at dangerous street intersections near schools are to be provided with signs bearing the warning "School—Go Slow." This inscription is on a round disc atop six-foot orange standards.

Pupils of the elementary grades will be instructed by more experienced students of the upper grades how to operate the traffic signs and the experiment was tried for the first time at 11:30 a. m. Monday when the grades were dismissed.

In his talks on safety, Patrolman Shagin impressed the grade children with the fact that sidewalks are intended for pedestrians and streets for vehicular traffic. He pointed out that it is just as ridiculous for children to walk in the street as it would be for automobiles to be driven on the sidewalks.

It is planned to have the junior traffic cops keep a check on all jay-walking of school children and possibly a traffic court will be held over which Shagin will preside and before which traffic violators will be brought.

The student officers will make no attempt to direct traffic but will call attention of motorists to the danger of hitting school children by whirling the signs and blowing a whistle with which each student will also be equipped.

Has the laxative in your home

a family doctor's approval?

MOST of us value our health too much to purposely neglect ourselves when we are warned of constipation by bad breath, feverishness, biliousness, a headache, lack of appetite, or that weak, helpless feeling. The continuation of our trouble is more often due to the things we do rather than the things we leave undone.

Some things people do to help the bowels really weaken these organs. Only a doctor knows what things will cleanse the system without harm. That's why the laxative in your home should have a family doctor's approval.

A wonderful product now known to millions of people as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a family doctor's prescription for sluggish bowels. It never varies from the original

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

AN INSIGHT ON FAITH—Jesus looked up, and saw the rich men casting their gifts into the treasury. And he saw also a certain poor widow casting in thither two mites. And he said, Of a truth I say unto you, that this poor widow hath cast in more than they all: For all these have of their abundance cast in unto the offerings of God; but she of her penury hath cast in all the living that she had. —Luke 21:1, 2, 3, 4.

TAX REDUCTION

In announcing that, with the approval of President Hoover, he intends to recommend to congress changes in schedules that will effect a reduction of approximately $160,000,000 in income taxes to be collected next year, Secretary Mellon gives a practical expression of expert opinion regarding the economic and financial condition and prospects of the United States, which is extremely valuable just at this time.

With an increase in the total national budget a certainty, the proposal by the secretary of the treasury is founded on an assumption that the income of the government also will grow in spite of the reduction he suggests. In other words, the secretary foresees general business and industrial advancement sufficient to produce under tax schedules less exacting than those now existing, a net government income that will cover the rising federal expense.

All of which means that in the opinion of Mr. Mellon, who knows as much about such matters as most men do, and is not given to rose-colored visions, the hurricanes in Wall street are having little or no real effect upon the economic condition and outlook of the country, and are a thing apart from the business and industrial world except as the two impinge in a minor, incidental way.

That view is manifestly sound. American prosperity is founded upon something much more solid and substantial than the ups and downs of a small number of people who spend their time gambling in stocks. It is in no wise dependent upon variations in paper profits and losses.

What count are the situation of the steady, substantial people of the nation, the buying ability of those who work instead of gambling for a living, the condition of the markets, both domestic and world wide, the general will and temper of the country. And careful analysis made for the purpose of arriving at facts, indicate that the position of the United States today is distinctly good, with everything suggesting continuance of progress and prosperity.

It is true that for the moment there are "spots" where things could stand improvement, but that is always bound to be the case. On the other hand, the reports indicate that agriculture is solidly prosperous. The failure in the Argentine has made things particularly favorable for the grain grower; and with the farm board in operation, the man who makes his living off the land finds himself in a position to get the good prices he ought to receive. This will give him buying power, and a country is bound to be economically happy when its farmers are good customers of its merchants and manufacturers. Coming closer home, it is a matter of record that the market for automobiles is opening up in almost every quarter of the globe in a way that presages an expanding market for years to come.

These things are significant of the conditions which are to exist in America next year and the year following and long after the spectacular storms of the fall of 1929 in Wall street have been forgotten except by a few people.

FOILED

The smallest piece of real estate in New York is situated at Christopher Street and Seventh Avenue at the entrance to a United Cigar store. It's a plot about one foot in size. Realtors in the neighborhood are said to have offered fabulous sums for it and investigations revealed that the real estate sharps had planned to buy the land, erect a flagpole on it, blocking the entrance to the cigar store, and thus easing the United out.

But the dastardly scheme was foiled and the stogie shop was saved.

THE WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

OUR CURIOSITY

We human beings are willing to pay millions to satisfy our curiosity about ourselves. The appropriation of government money to meet the cost of taking the census of 1930 will be about $30,000,000. The mere enumeration of the population is a small part of the work. There will be a vast collection of varied information about us and our activities. There will be a manufacturing and distribution census. It will be discovered how many things have been manufactured and how many have been sold. When the results of this amazing census have been published we of the United States should know "where we are at."

ABOUT WHAT?

One thing the census takers will probably not find out. It is the most important thing, and the thing we most want to know. They will tell us how many we are, how big we are, how much money we make. But they can't tell us what it's all about. They can't tell us why we are here and where we are going.

TAKING STOCK OF MAN

These census takers will not be able to take the human being apart and set him down in neat rows of figures and statistical tables. They cannot explain to us the mystery of his behavior, the strength of his impulses, the capacity he has for repression or expression, his amazing lack of rationality, his vanity, his generosity or his pettiness. They cannot measure his will power, his capacity for resistance, his ideals and his failures. All that, put into a census, would be informing. Knowing all that, or half that, would be worth while.

AS TO FREEDOM

The wise old Epictetus said that "he is free who lives as he chooses." That is an entirely unsound idea even though it may in a way be true. If the first place nobody can live exactly as he chooses. Inasmuch as most of us would part of the time choose things that would be bad for us, it is fortunate that law and custom prevent us from having absolute freedom of choice. Adjustment to the best thought in civilization and a disposition to be harmonious in human relationships is much better than the entirely imaginative idea of complete freedom.

Who's Who and Timely Views

By A. LAWRENCE LOWELL

President of Harvard University (Abbott Lawrence Lowell, Dec. 13, 1856. He is a graduate of Harvard, has received a Ph. D. degree from five foreign universities and honorary degrees from some 14 other universities. From 1880 to 1879 he practiced law in Boston. He was professor of government at Harvard from 1900 to 1909 and has been president of that university since the latter date. He has been sole trustee of Lowell Institute, Boston, since 1909. is president of the League to Enforce Peace, a fellow of the Royal Academy, and member of several other foreign orders. He is the author of a number of books on government.)

The temptation to go to the devil increases directly with the age rather than being strongest in the young. Found mothers are afraid to let their sons go off to college at a young age for fear they will become speedily enmeshed in sin are mistakenly apprehensive.

The fact that the average age of college freshmen has been reduced a whole year to eighteen years and four months since 1890 is eminently desirable. In the future there will be still greater reductions.

If only the dear mothers who are afraid of their boys going to college so early would look over our figures at Harvard, they would see that the temptation to go to the devil increases with age. Anybody who knows anything about the devil understands this. The younger the boys are the better scholars they are and the better behaved they are.

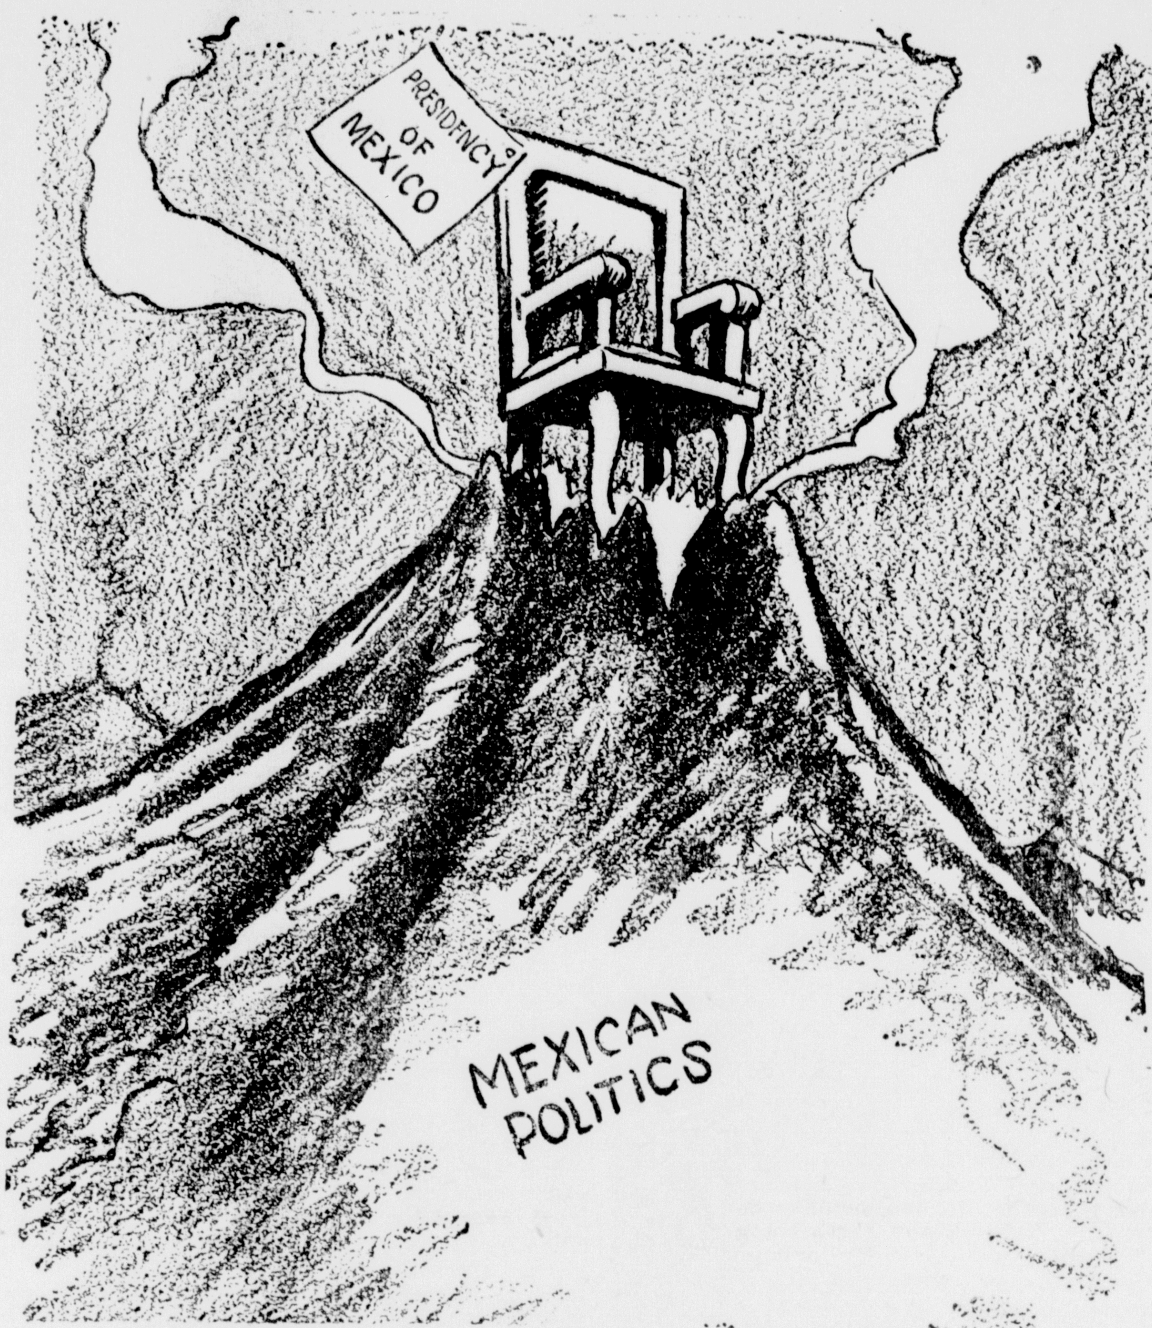

My great-grandfather sent my grandfather to college at the age of thirteen, too young to dissipate. It worked out exceptionally well.

Young boys think they're hell-raising when they go so far as to smoke a cigaret, but the older boys go to drink to get his thrill. The older they get the greater the length to which they will go for excitement, and at 40 a man does really vicious things. That's why college is no place for older men. There is a time to study and a time to work and a time to wed.

Students used to enter college at a very young age, but the effect of raising college standards and widening the range of requirements 75 years ago was to lift the average age of freshman. By the middle 1850's the average age had come up to 17 years and ten months, and continued to increase steadily thereafter. The climax was reached at 19 years and four months between 1886 and 1890. Since then, however, the age of freshmen has dropped a whole year.

Those who think that college men spend too much time in formal study before getting to work, propose to cut the college span from four to three years. Better than this, is to get students in at a younger age than even now.

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

I have spent my time discussing the manner in which women in different walks of life budget for beauty. I do not want to leave this subject without telling you a little about the mature woman whose income permits the most luxurious kinds of beauty treatments. There are a number of such women who patronize the very best beauty salons, both in this country and abroad. Some of them pay yearly for treatments in advance, which may take in treating salons of the expert who is treating them, whether in Paris, London, South America—or wherever their travels may happen to take them. I know women who allow themselves $1,000 or $1,200 for a yearly course of facial treatments alone, which they take in any part of the world—two every week. Such women spend four or five hundred dollars on perfumes which are especially prepared for them by leading perfumers.

There is a special kind of perfume which such a woman prefers. It does not last as long as the ordinary one, but it looks more natural, and so she permits herself four a year, totaling $140. Her 52 manures throughout the year cost $50 without the tips, and she tips very generously.

Every week her hair is washed, the wave is set and her scalp is given special care. This requires $150 yearly. Then there are very luxuriant hand treatments, carrying a charge of approximately $5, or six treatments for $25, and this generally amounts up to about $150 a year; special massages for the back and arms, bath salts, talcum and unusual toilet waters make $500 more. Her beauty preparations for home use are applied with a lavish hand, and often cost from $2,500 or $3,000 for the year.

If any of you will take the trouble to add up these various sums, you will find that this elegant lady spends approximately over $5,000 a year on keeping herself beautiful. Staggering figures! I am not suggesting that many of my readers attempt to emulate this lady, but I do think it is interesting information, particularly to so many women who will not even permit themselves the luxury of a facial or hair wash. Both of these represent extremes.

But every modern woman should know that the loveliest clothes in the world will not make her distinctly chic unless she is perfectly groomed.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Who cares if the market did slump?

Two hundred and ninety individual American incomes exceeded a million apiece in 1927, or 62 more such incomes than the year before.

Secretary Mellon's internal revenue bureau, in giving out this information, does not say whether or not any of the country's 290 biggest coupon-clippers were caught in the latest Wall Street crash and subsided below the million-dollar level again.

The treasury does not keep that closely up to date. Probably, however, none did. The stock exchange debris having been partially swept up, it is understood in federal reserve circles that the "big fellows," as so often happens, emerged from the jam practically unimpaired—mostly, in fact, just the reverse; only the peewees were cleaned out.

Secretary Mellon's cheerful report was made Assistant Commerce Secretary Julius Klein's optimistic announcement that "business is fundamentally sound."

It supported Dr. Klein's statement admirably, revealing that the total 1927 emoluments of the 290 richest folk in the United States were $300,640,846—if there were any odd cents the internal revenue bureau omitted them; so that, evidently, some of the 290 incomes referred to had only exceeded a million each, but exceeded it considerably.

Such figures hardly suggest a financially embarrassed Santa Claus next month—in at least 290 homes, anyway; out of America's 25,000,000 or thereabouts.

Arithmetically minded people can go on ciphering as long as they like. For instance—suppose America's 290 richest families were dependent for their point $300,640,846, upon contributions from the rest of us, of $100 each; it would take 6,006,408 of us to make up the million each, and it would be $46 shy even then.

But that would scarcely be fair. A good many families could not afford a $100 assessment. Say we confine our levy to those sufficiently well-to-do to pay income taxes of their own. There are 2,440,941 of them. They average incomes of $5,496 apiece. Let them fork over $245 each and the fund is forthcoming—minus a beggarly $169,360 which the rest of us can dig up among ourselves.

As for the 2,440,941 small income taxpayers, they still have $5,250 apiece left, which is enough.

Speaking of Figures—

If senators were awarded to the various states on population basis, which quite a few statesmen are expressing themselves in favor of, if only they could change the constitution to permit it—

It would be impossible to allot more than one senator to any state which now has fewer than seven representatives, or it would make the upper house of congress as unwieldy as the lower one, and everyone agrees that that would be terrible.

For example, New York's senators would run to 40-odd.

On the basis, then, of one senator (the smallest of them would have to have one apiece at least) to each state with 1,463,701 inhabitants or less, with an additional senator for every additional 1,463,701, or fraction thereof (statistics as of the census of 1920) the lineup would be like this:

One senator each—Arizona, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Idaho, Maine, Maryland, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oregon, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Utah, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia and Wyoming.

Two senators each—Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Iowa, Alabama, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Minnesota, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia and Wisconsin.

Three senators each—California, Indiana, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri and New Jersey.

Four senators each—Ohio and Texas.

Five senators—Illinois.

Six senators—Pennsylvania.

Eight senators—New York.

Or 97 senators in all—four more than today, to break ties, instead of the vice president.

Hint for Mothers
When giving a small baby cod liver oil from a spoon, try holding a quarter of a paper napkin under her chin. This will prevent the ugly yellow stains from soiling her clothing. The napkins may be purchased very cheaply and are well worth the cost.

Diet and Health

Eye Blinders.

"Shall I pull down the curtains?" Ray asked, as I went to my bedroom to take a nap in the afternoon, after having studied one night recently until three in the morning.

"No," I answered, "It isn't necessary. Look!" and I elatedly held up a little black silk eye blinder which a Mrs. S. S. sent me.

"Oh, that's going to be dandy," Ray smiled. "Too bad Mrs. S. didn't give her address so you could thank her, isn't it?"

Well I'll do it now. Thank you ever so much, Mrs. S. It certainly was nice of you.

You remember not long ago, one of the readers complained that when it became light in the morning she awoke and had a hard time to get to sleep again. I told her that when I sometimes experienced the same difficulty I used a pair of black silk stockings, one drawn within the other, as a "blinder." Shortly afterwards, I received the one I mentioned, from Mrs. S., who said I'd find it much better than the one I was using. And I do. It is splendid. I'll describe it for those of you who are interested: It consists of two thicknesses of black taffeta, with a piece cut out so it fits over the nose. It is about three inches wide over the eyes and about eight inches long. At each side is a little white tape, just long enough to fit over the ears, one end sewed on to the top and the other to the bottom.

"Dear Doctor: If you have an article on body odors, will you please send it to me? No doubt you will laugh at me, but there is certainly something wrong with my husband and me. We went to an ear, nose and throat specialist for an examination, and he treated our nasal catarrh, but laughed at us when we asked him if he could detect the odor. It is almost two months now that it has been about us, and we cannot find out where it comes from. Our friends notice it, and we notice it when we come in from outside. The odor is like that of a dead rat, and even our clothes smell from it. It is terribly embarrassing. Please help us.

Simple catarrh would not cause an odor such as you complain of. Mrs. Y.—a dead rat, infrequently rats may die in between partitions, and the odor from their decomposition is very terrible and penetrating. Report it to your landlord, and if he doesn't have it investigated, report it to your health department.

In a new apartment hotel that I was living in at one time we had a bad odor which was finally traced to the concealed hot water pipes in the bathroom. They were leaking and the decomposing water caused the odor. Which shows you can't get away from such troubles occasionally, even in modern dwellings.

Bad odors, in themselves, will not cause disease—unless, of course they should be so intense and prolonged that the disagreeable sensations they produced finally got on the nerves, depressed the appetite, etc., and in that way lowered the resistance.

For those who are interested, we have an article on Colds, Catarrh, etc. See column rules for obtaining this.

Mrs. C.—Your questions are answered in our pamphlet on the Hygiene of Women. See column rules.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Queer, isn't it, the low-down tricks to which folks resort to bolster up their opinions of themselves, and the risks they run with their own happiness?

To what can we attribute the actions of the husband in the following letter but to an inferiority complex which he tries to quiet by making love to his wife's friends.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I have taken a dislike to my husband, but not without, cause. I have thought of leaving him, but my idea of leaving is putting the miles behind, and if I do this I will cause a sickly parent to worry and this parent would never be able to visit me, so I put up with a great deal on this account.

"The thing that my husband does that is embarrassing to me is this: He tries to date up the women that come to visit me. He slips them love notes (I found several) and calls them on the telephone, sometimes asking for dates. "His salary isn't sufficient to keep us without my help. Some have fallen for him and he calls them the very lowest names, behind their backs. I suggested once that we separate if he was not satisfied, but he cried and took on so terribly. He said I was the only one he loved and wanted to stay with me always. Only yesterday he tried to date up a woman who visits us. Have you any suggestions?

JUSTINE."

Do you love him, Justine? A good deal hangs on that. I'd like to advise you to leave him because you have a problem on your hands that I'm afraid will grow more perplexing as time goes on, unless you can have him psychoanalyzed and helped out of his abnormal state of mind.

Mentally he isn't grown man, but a child. He isn't competent to earn a living for his family and knows it, and to bolster up his self-esteem he tries to have affairs with women. He may not be a "man among men," but at least he'll be "devil with the ladies." The question is: Do you want to continue to live with that kind of a person? If you love him, if you feel responsible for him to the extent that you are willing to sacrifice your chance of freedom with the possibility of later meeting someone who will be your mental equal and a real companion, you will stick.

He needs a mother—not a wife—someone with infinite patience to overlook his faults and feed his self esteem. If your love is equal to the task, well and good, but at least don't go into it with your eyes shut.

As for the feeble parent, she can visit you when you have made a new home for yourself, if you decide to quit. I can't see that it would be right for you to sacrifice your life happiness to a wish to save her worry. Talk the matter over with her and see what she advises.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: We are three caballeros. One of the caballeros, whenever we try to make a date with girl friends, backs out. We would like your advice concerning how we can get him to go out with us. He's a nice looking fellow and is well liked by the girls, but is sort of shy. If we make a blind date he will enjoy himself, but if we tell him about making the date he will always back out. THREE CABALLEROS."

He is just self-conscious and shy. If he has time to think about the date he gets stage fright and backs down. The only way to manage is to make blind dates for him, if possible, for awhile. He'll outgrow it. You might suggest to him, however, when he has made a date and wants to break it, that a real caballero would not leave a lady in the lurch. He would be more considerate of her feelings, even to the point of conquering or concealing his fright.

SUITABLE FOR THANKSGIVING DINNER

Cider Salad (Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe)

Scoop out the centers from medium-sized red apples. (Save centers for applesauce). Mix together one cup chopped celery, one cup chopped walnuts, one-eighth cup chopped seedless raisins, one-half cup finely shredded cabbage, one-half cup sweet cider, four teaspoons thick mayonnaise. Let this mixture stand on ice for several hours so that the flavors are well blended. Then press it gently into the apple shells, cover tops with mayonnaise and sprinkle thickly with nuts. Serve on crisp lettuce leaves. Serves four.

Peter's Adventures

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

CLEVER CAMOUFLAGE

Among the green leaves of the rosebush Peter was sure he spied a hewite cap of Mrs. Rose Beetle, the lady of the house.

"Mrs. Rose Beetle is at home. I'm certain!" he cried. "This is housecleaning day for her. She is dusting off the rose petals. Aren't you afraid she will spy us?"

"Pshaw! I never thought of that!" Father Beetle was a little worried. "If she should, it would spoil everything for us. She would give the alarm."

Biffer, however, was not dismayed. He signaled to the side of the path and, biding a leaf from a blackberry bush that trailed along the ground, held it in his mouth as he crawled toward his companions. The leaf was so wide Peter couldn't see Biffer's little body at all behind its green shelter.

"Get a shield like mine," shrilled Biffer. "Then Mrs. Rose will spy us and think we are but leaves blowing down the path. There is quite a breeze this morning, you notice."

"Clever idea!" declared Father Beetle. "Come on, the rest of you, at a time, and bite off a leaf shield. Hurry up, there's not a moment to be lost. The Garden Beetles will be here any time now. And all is lost if they see us. We must reach the 'chelter of that stone before they arrive."

Father Gun-Beetle hurried to the blackberry bush and bit off his shield, and the other beetles followed his example. Peter, not to be left out of things, did just as his new friends did. And as he and the Gun-Beetles, in single file crawled toward the stone, a looker-on would have declared they were leaves, swirled by the wind. Peter was sure Mrs. Rose would be fooled by the clever camouflage, and Lady Bird, however, was inclined to scoff at the performance.

"I feel so foolish carrying this thing in my mouth," said she. "But look, boy. See those dust clouds ahead of us. What can be stirring up the dust so if not Rose and Stag?"

SPORT SNAP SHOTS FRAMED by Phil

Hats off to the ladies. Give Mrs. Anna Williams a great big hand as Tex Guilan would say. Forecasting the probable outcome of twenty-five collegiate football games Saturday, Mrs. Williams picked twenty winners and only five losers, her debut as a prediction expert being an excellent one. It might be well to leave all the predicting to feminine fans if her record Saturday may be taken as a criterion. With the season nearing a close local fans have selected a grand total of 110 winners against only forty-four losers for a percentage of 714. Mrs. Williams correctly picked these winners: Akron, 14; Case, 0. Pennsylvania, 20; Columbus, 0. Dartmouth, 18; Cornell, 14. Indiana, 19; Northwestern, 14. Purdue, 7; Iowa, 0. Oglethorpe, 7; St. Xavier, 0. Wash. and Jeff., 15; Wittenberg, 0.

Xenia Central and Sidney football teams, neither of which has won a game this season in the Miami Valley League, will dispute the league cellar championship in the final home appearance of the Bucs Friday afternoon at Cox Athletic Field. Sidney, with an admittedly stronger team, is slightly better off than the Bucs, however, by virtue of a tie game it played with Mansfield, the score being 7 to 7. Sidney won 3 to 0 against Troy and beat Sidney, 3 to 0. Xenia and Sidney have met on the gridiron only twice and Sidney won each game. In 1922, when football relations between the two schools began, Sidney spoiled an otherwise perfect Xenia record by winning 7 to 0. The schools did not meet again until last year when Sidney was again victorious, 2 to 0.

This defeat, by a margin of a safety on a muddy gridiron, deprived the Bucs of the league title for it was Xenia's only league defeat all season, although two tie games were played against other league opponents. It will be the gridiron swan song for nine senior members of Xenia Central's grid squad when the Bucs wind up the season against Springfield Thanksgiving Day. Joe Smith, John Hurley, Harper Billmyre, John Pulliam, John Cooper, Kenneth Finlay and Theodore Patton will don grid togs for the last time. John Schlepfi and Minor Monroe, also seniors, will be prevented by injuries from taking part in any more games.

MARSTERS LEADING DESPITE INJURIES

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Despite the fact that he has been out of action for two weeks because of injuries, Al Marsters of Dartmouth, today still leads in the race for individual football scoring honors in the east. The green star had amassed 108 points before being forced to retire for the season and it looks as if he might be in the lead when the season closes.

NEW YORK GIANTS BEAT GRANGE TEAM

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Benny Friedman's New York Giants today appeared to be the best professional football team in the National League following their smashing 34 to 0 victory over Red Grange's Chicago Bears. The Giants are in a tie with the Green Bay Packers for the league lead. In another professional game Stapleton overwhelmed Bayonne, 30 to 0, while East Orange and the Frankfort Yellow Jackets battled to a scoreless tie.

NATIONAL TITLE CLOUDED BY CROWD OF UNDEFEATED TEAMS

Notre Dame, Pittsburgh, Purdue, California, Tennessee Among Teams That Can Finish In Victory Class; Dead Heat Is Indicated

By DAVIS J. WALSH International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Intercollegiate football was beginning its run down the stretch today, with the wire only a few jumps ahead, and any man with a couple of eyes and the ambition to use both of them simultaneously can pick a winner at a glance. This, as a matter of fact, seems to be the abiding problem. There are too many winners. It is a simple matter to pick the leaders. They are Notre Dame, Pittsburgh, Purdue, Tennessee, California, Tulane, Texas Christian, Utah and possibly St. Mary's, Detroit, Southern Methodist and a few others. It only begins to get difficult when you try to distinguish one from the other with the idea of arriving at some degree of relative strength.

After its 13 to 12 victory over Southern California on Saturday, nobody can claim any national titles without first consulting Notre Dame. Yet the latter isn't even undisputed champion of the state of Indiana. For Purdue was as impressive as ever before in winning the Big Ten championship by beating Iowa, 7 to 0, and if it lasts through next Saturday, its status will be beyond the eloquence of debate. Frankly, Purdue should finish its season undefeated. So should a Pittsburgh team that was great enough to run up 21 points on an arch-rival in the first period and finally give Carnegie Tech its worst beating of recent years, 34 to 13. It isn't likely, either, that anybody is going to stop Tennessee, Tulane, California or Utah. The Notre Dame situation isn't foolproof yet, with the Army and Northwestern coming up, and undoubtedly Texas Christian won't begin making plans for spring practice before it gets through with Southern Methodist. The rest of them may go wrong. But they probably won't.

It, therefore, seems probable that at least a half dozen teams will do what the taxi driver did on the day he didn't beat the railroad train to the crossing. They will run a dead heat, too. Speaking of deaths, two of them died on Saturday when Cornell finished last behind Dartmouth 13 to 14 and Texas lost to the Christians by 15 to 12. This pair of Southwest leaders went crazy early in the game but the Christians went crazier and won. They were the first team to score on Texas this year, leaving only St. Mary's with an unblemished goal line, so far as I know. The latter best California's southern branch by 24 to 0. As for Cornell, it was eliminated with a pass in his own territory with five minutes to play. That automatically made Cornell the worst team on the field.

Notre Dame's split-second victory over U. S. C. was a repetition of the 1926 game, as far as the score went, it had no parallel. The Irish won this football game strictly on its merits, the Trojan screws coming on long-gaited plays and their feared "power" attack being throttled down to nothing. They were out-rushed, out-passed and out-charged, according to the run of the play. In brief, the better team won. There wasn't any doubt that this was so in Pitt's case. Tech, in fact,

NUTRITION PROJECT OPENED AT MEETING OF WOMEN LEADERS

Ten Xenia Twp. leaders and four leaders from Miami Twp. met at the home of Mrs. J. W. Ray last Thursday for instruction in the nutrition project "Attractive Desires," which is being carried on by the women of Greene County. This first lesson gave information on the use of sugar in the diet and demonstrated several attractive confections. Mrs. Ray, Mrs. Clarence Baynard and Mrs. John Harner are in charge of this work in Xenia Twp. and gave the instruction to the group leaders to carry back to the ladies in their various communities. Two group meetings will be held in the township next Thursday, one being at the home of Mrs. Ernest Hutchison. All women of Oak Grove community are invited to attend this demonstration. The second meeting is for the ladies of Union community and will be held at the home of Mrs. Ralph Spahr, and all women in that vicinity who may be interested in the demonstration are invited. Meetings in other communities of the township will be announced later. This work is under the supervision of County Agent Drake operating with the home economics department of Ohio State University and the Greene County Farm Bureau, and is offered free to Greene County women. MANY IN PERIL IN HOSPITAL BLAZE

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 18.—Lives of hundreds of bed-ridden patients, including twenty babies, some only a few days old, were endangered today when an explosion and fire wrecked the X-ray laboratory of the University of California Hospital here. A short circuit in the electrical wiring leading to the X-ray apparatus was believed responsible for the fire, which caused damage estimated at $75,000.

WILBERFORCE BEATS KENTUCKY 13-0

VISITORS FURNISH REAL OPPOSITION BY STRONG DEFENSE

Regulars Score After Second Stringers Are Stopped

Meeting unexpectedly strong opposition, Wilberforce University's football team was held to two touchdowns but eked out a 13 to 0 victory over Kentucky State College, Frankfort, Ky., in an inter-sectional game at Wilberforce Saturday afternoon. Over-confidence in a measure robbed Wilberforce of its offensive punch.

The invading Kentucky team, which was light and had no semblance of an offense except Givens' toe and a defense that consisted of two tackles, a center and a left end, held Wilberforce to a total of six first downs.

Time after time throughout the game Miller and Evans, Kentucky tackles, broke through the Wilberforce forward wall and downed the ball-carriers in their tracks or with slight gains.

Kentucky played a strictly defensive game, content to hold the Bulldogs to as low a score as possible and to give them every time the visitors had possession of the ball. Even the battering assaults of Tynes were withstood remarkably well by the scrappy Kentucky line.

Coach Graves started his second team and the first quarter was scoreless, the reserves failing to gain ground consistently. Gains that were made were often nullified by penalties.

As the opening quarter ended Wilberforce had reached Kentucky's four-yard line on fourth down. Mitchell was stopped for no gain on a line plunge and Givens kicked out from behind the goal line to his own forty.

The regulars were inserted into the fray in the second period but they were not getting started and the first half ended scoreless. The first Wilberforce touchdown came in the third period. Using off-tackle and "spinner" plays, the Force registered the first marker on a march that climaxed in Tynes plunging across for a touchdown toward the end of the period. Scurry place-kicked the extra point.

Kentucky's line weakened in the fourth quarter under the battering thrusts of Tynes, Lucas and Thornhill. Following a series of line plays alternated with sweeping end runs Tynes again carrying the ball across the final chalk mark. Scurry's place-kick for the extra point was blocked.

Both teams were guilty of frequent fumbles. Kentucky recorded only one first down. Penalties cost Wilberforce seventy yards and Kentucky fifteen.

The line play of Wilberforce reflected the absence of Nixon, regular guard, and Mendenhall and Fowler, regular ends, who warmed the bench because of injuries received in the Howard game a week ago.

K was the fifth victory of the season for Wilberforce, which has an inter-sectional game with Simmons University at Louisville, Ky., next Saturday. Lineups: Wilberforce (13) Pos. Ky. (6) Robinson l.e. Moore Calloway l.t. Miller Willis l.g. Frazier Williamson c. Douthitt Bunchas r.e. Simpson Manson r.e. Evans Chas. Lucas r.e. Page Mitchell q.b. Shively Scurry l.b. Livers Terry r.h. Givens Campbell f.b. Richardson

Score by periods: Kentucky 0 0 0 0—0 Wilberforce 0 0 7 6—13 Scoring touchdowns: Wilberforce—Tynes (2); point after touchdown—Scurry (placement). Substitutions: Wilberforce—Ashe for Moore; Boyd for Ashe. Kentucky—none. Officials—Dudley, Cincinnati; referee; Fish, Ohio State; umpire; Turnbull, Marietta, head linesman.

MUST BE ANOTHER GREENE COUNTY

INFORMATION crediting Greene County with having legally elected a man jury commissioner two years after his death, received by Robert Ripley, author of the syndicated cartoon labeled "Believe It Or Not," who wrote Clerk of Courts Harvey Elam for confirmation of the report, was "grossly exaggerated," according to the county official. According to the letter, the name of the man appeared on the ballots as a candidate two years after his death occurred. The incident, if true, must have occurred in Greene County in some other state because of the fact jury commissioners in this county are appointed by the common Pleas Court judge and are not elected, Elam announced.

NOTRE DAME WINS IN COLORFUL BATTLE

HOME CADETS END SEASON WITH VICTORY OVER SCHOOL OF DEAF

The O. S. and S. O. Home football team climaxed a successful season in a successful manner by triumphing over the eleven representing the Columbus state school of deaf, 13 to 7 in a fiercely fought game on the Home gridiron Saturday afternoon.

Captain R. Yowell, halfback, carried the ball over for both of the cadet touchdowns in the opening quarter and Fullback McKinley added the extra point once. Thereafter the Home was held scoreless while the Columbus eleven scored one touchdown in the third period and the added point came on a drop-kick.

Despite the score, the cadets were more superior than it would appear for the Home was on the offensive a greater part of the game. Handicapped in a majority of the games by lack of weight, the Home experienced one of the most successful seasons from the standpoint of games won and lost in the history of the institution. Four games were won, two were

INDIAN FIGHTER IS HELPING TO REVIVE WOODCARVING ART

CONNEAUT, O., Nov. 18.—Woodcarving became a lost art decades ago in this country, but Edgar S. Stewart, 67, one-time Indian fighter and now an inmate of the National Military Home in Dayton, O., has done his best to revive the art.

At the same time his carvings tend to focus attention on the pioneers of this country and their mode of living, as most all of his work depicts scenes of Abraham Lincoln's time.

Stewart pursues his art the nine months of the year that he spends in the Military Home. The summer months he spends here with his son, Carl Stewart.

In an inconspicuous corner of the Occupational Therapy Department of the Dayton Home, Stewart has a complete workshop, fashioned from an old wardrobe. Here, with his jackknives, hammers, chisels and other tools, he finds contentment.

Across the front of the improvised work-bench is a sign which reads:

"Stewart's Miniature, Antique and Historic Toyland."

Stewart likes nothing better than to show visitors his handiwork and explain to them the life and customs of the pioneers.

All his reproductions of pioneer scenes are exacted to the smallest detail. One of his exhibits is a complete set of colonial furniture. There is the typical old four-poster bed, the old stone fireplace, before which sits a Dutch kettle, a churn, a candle mould and a mixing bowl. There is also a sooty crane, and irons and tongs.

In another corner of the miniature colonial household there is a spinning wheel, a reel and other devices used by the pioneer mothers.

In his younger and more prosperous days Stewart owned a horse and gig, at that time, one of the finest on the road. The horse has been dead many years but he has been recreated in wood, hitched to a replica of the red and black gig of bygone days.

Stewart's collection contains in excess of 130 pieces.

"Why do I do it? Because it's lots of fun. You'll never know what joy there is in it until you've tried it," Stewart asserted.

TO BE REINSTATED
DELAWARE, O., Nov. 18.—Members of the Omicron Delta Kappa, senior honorary fraternity and six students in probation after alleged telling of risqué jokes in a musical show at Ohio Wesleyan University, will be reinstated Thanksgiving Day, according to William A. Sanders, dean of men at the school.

READ THIS FIRST:

Rosalie March, seventeen, secures a position at the hosiery counter of a store through the kindness of Kenessa Du Barry, actress. She is adored by her landlady, Mother Murphy, and little Tim O'Hara, the corner newsie. Rosalie discovers a run in her only pair of silk stockings. She wears an old cotton pair to the store, much to the amusement of the salesgirls. In desperation, she decides to take a silk pair from stock and make good for them pay day. She drops them and is observed by Alberto Martino, the store detective, who threatens to arrest her unless she agrees to hide some suitcases in her room for him. Rosalie is frightened and agrees. In the meantime Roy Clarke Andrews, nephew of the owner of the store, falls in love with Rosalie and asks her to marry him. Rosalie is called to the phone. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXV

It was a girl's voice and it sounded far off and muffled.

Rosalie was nonplussed at the girlish "guess who this is" that came to her.

"Oh, Ann Schultz! The girl giggled and Rosalie reassured.

"How would you like to do something you've never done in your life before?"

"What is it?" Rosalie asked her uncertainly. She couldn't imagine Ann calling her.

Again Ann giggled as though it were a great lark.

"There are a bunch of us out at the Barnes flying field. Rosalie, and we are going for a ride in a big plane. You must come out and go with us."

Roy was standing in the door and he heard Rosalie say as though she might be a little disappointed.

"Oh, Ann, I'd love to, really, but I have company."

"Bring him along."

"But—wait a minute!" Roy called softly and went down to the next flight and asked her what it was all about.

"There is a bunch from the store going on an airplane ride. Ann Schultz wants us to come out."

He hesitated thoughtfully. Well, it wouldn't be long until the whole world would know that he was going to marry Rosalie, anyway. He liked flying and he thought it would be just the thing to cheer her up.

"Would you like to go dear?" he said then. "If you would, tell me we'll be out in about fifteen minutes."

It would be amusing if it was a store crowd to see their surprise when he came out with Rosalie. He had never been conventional or class-conscious as long as people were amusing and he wanted to be with them.

Tim was at his stand when they drove by. He had never seen Roy Andrews with Rosalie before and his jaw dropped with surprise.

Then his heart burned with jealousy. That swell car and all that money—and Andrews so good looking and everything! He was only a muddle of freckles and red hair. No matter what he could ever do for Queen she would never think as much of a guy like him as of a rich and keen looking like Roy!

Then Tim decided that a rich man who went out with a poor, unprotected girl like Rosalie was out for no good. He doubled his fist and squared his jaw again. That might be another bird he'd have to take a sock at.

Tim was beginning to take his role of protector with great seriousness. What he could ever mean to Rosalie was very vague in his mind. But he meant always to have her for his girl in his heart and take care of her.

No knight in shining armor could have excelled the pugnacious little Irish youngster in bravery or determination at that moment. Rosalie was his shining star—and he was her bulwark through anything that might come to her.

Rosalie sat in the car beside Roy smiling to herself at the surprise in store for Ann. When she saw her with Roy Andrews she would just plumb give up the ghost! How wonderful it was of him to take her to meet the store crowd who would know the truth now.

They passed a rambling low bungalow at a cross roads. It had shiny white paint and green shutters that gleamed in the light that struck it from the car. Rosalie thought it was just what she would like for her own home. She smiled shyly up at him.

"I don't see that little house? Isn't it homely and cozy?"

"I've always liked it," he assented, smiling. "I bet I thought the same thing you did."

"What? You tell me and I'll tell you."

He whispered as though it were a great secret.

"I thought—that is the kind of a little house I want for us."

Her heart swelled with happiness, and her teeth showed in the shy little grin he loved when she admitted that it was exactly what she had been thinking. Her love was still so new and so hard to imagine that she felt self-conscious every time he looked at her in his intimate, happy way. She wanted so much to touch him all of the time—but she held back with a reserve he adored.

Sometimes her coming position as his wife overwhelmed her. How could she ever learn all the things she would have to learn in order to be the gracious hostess and the clever wife a man of his standing would simply have to have. She knew he thought her perfect. He had told her so. But if he knew how much she didn't know!

Why, she would have to buy all sorts of books and magazines and read and read for the next few weeks so that she would know how people in his strata of society lived and acted. She knew she could catch on quickly. High school had been a simple matter. She never remembered struggling at a lesson in her life.

As though he were reading her thoughts he said to her a little while later:

"We have a lot of plans to make, dearest. The most interesting thing I have to do yet is break the news to Uncle Peter. That will have to be done very cleverly."

She looked at him with wide, puzzled eyes.

"You think he will not approve of your marrying a girl like me. Oh—maybe he will."

He grinned at her then and bent and kissed her.

"It just happens that Uncle Peter isn't marrying you, my sweet. Poor old fellow!"

"You mean—you'd marry me anyway?"

"Oh, bless your heart! But—would you marry a poor man, providing he throws me out of my job and refuses to keep the wolf from our door, even though I am entitled to his fortune?"

Her little nose went into the air with a sniff.

"As if money makes any difference to me. I'd rather you didn't have any. It would be easier living in a little apartment all to ourselves. I really don't know anything about running a big house. I'd be scared stiff."

By that time they were at the field. He kissed her tenderly as he lifted her out of the car. What an infant! It was a shame for her to marry so young. But she had to be taken care of. And he couldn't exist very long without claiming her. She was so little and dear.

The night was pitch dark and they stumbled along toward the big plane with motors roaring several hundred yards from the road.

Suddenly a light flashed on them for a second and Rosalie felt a large hand over her mouth. She could not scream or cry out. Paralyzed, she felt herself being carried hurriedly away—and a moment later she was thrown into a car, her hands and feet tied securely.

When she heard the plane roar away all the blood of her body froze in horror. Martino! They had been tricked.

She faintly—with a little stifled moan.

The Theater

Chicago gunmen, district attorneys and newspaper reporters who speak perfect French will soon be put on the Paris stage in an effort to make French dramatists "snap out of it."

They will be actors in "The Front Page," the play of Chicago newspaper life, which was so popular in this country last winter. Camille Wyn has purchased the French rights. He believes that theater-goers are suffering from indigestion on account of sexy dramas and the newspaper play is

Twenty Years '09- Ago -'29

The street at Main and Detroit Sts. will be torn up for a few days while the Springfield and Xenia Traction Co. repairs its tracks at that point.

For the first time in many years the little village of Yellow Springs can boast of a hotel. Its proprietor is Frank McClain, the restaurant man.

Insurrection of the Rev. J. H. Webster as professor of Greek, Exegesis and New Testament Literature at the Xenia Theological Seminary will take place this evening.

Wilmington is planning to have a home-coming and a committee organized for that purpose has written J. F. Orr, this city, for advice in making arrangements.

ABANDON HOPE FOR SECRETARY GOOD

NAME FREEHOLDERS FOR SPRING VALLEY ELECTION CONTEST

Must Decide Whether Written Votes Were Proper.

Appointment of J. P. Zell, Yellow Springs; William Conley, Cedarville, and O. A. Spahr, Xenia, to constitute the jury of three disinterested freeholders who will hear evidence submitted at the hearing in Probate Court Tuesday morning contesting re-election of C. A. Sollers for a fourth term as mayor of Spring Valley village, is announced by Judge S. C. Wright. The hearing is scheduled to begin at 10 o'clock.

Whether, in the event voters write in the names of an additional candidate for public office on the ballot at an election, it is necessary also to mark an X opposite the name of the candidate, is the question to be decided at the hearing.

It is said that the state election law, which specifies that the X must be marked, is in conflict with an opinion of the state supreme court, which has ruled that the mere writing of the name of an additional candidate is sufficient evidence showing the intention of the voter to cast his ballot for that person.

Receiving eighty votes, Mayor Sollers was declared re-elected by a margin of eight votes over J. W. Fulkerson, who was accorded seventy-two votes, according to the precinct count. An application contesting Sollers' election on the ground that nine ballots on which Fulkerson's name was written should have been counted for him instead of being held invalid because the cross mark in front of his name was forgotten, was filed in Probate Court by Otto L. Haines, an elector of the village.

GRAND JURY PROBES CONTRACT FRAUDS

CANTON, O., Nov. 18.—The Stark County grand jury was scheduled to resume its investigation today into the contracts for the equipment of the Molly Stark Tuberculosis Sanitarium.

The investigation is the outgrowth of a Cuyahoga County probe which resulted in the conviction in Cleveland Saturday of Charles A. Fromm, Stark County commissioner, on charges of having solicited a bribe in connection with the letting of sanitarium contracts.

Prosecutor Henry W. Harter, who is conducting the investigation here, intimated today that he has "valuable information which may result in additional action."

Fromm was to go to trial here December 3 on an indictment charging him with having an illegal interest in a contract but Harter said today he would ask a continuance of the case pending the outcome of the commissioner's appeal in the Cleveland common pleas court.

LIQUOR ORDINANCE VALIDITY ASSAILED

ELYRIA, O., Nov. 18.—A decision as to the legality of Lorain's liquor ordinance was scheduled to be handed down today by Common Pleas Judge W. B. Thompson here.

Cases of four men, convicted in municipal court at Lorain were appealed to common pleas court on the ground that the Lorain city ordinance provides a maximum fine of $1,000 for first offense, while the city ordinance provides a maximum fine of only $500. Attorneys for the convicted men contend that the city ordinance is invalid.

ARREST AUTOIST ON DRUNK CHARGE

Arrested on the Wilmington Pike by L. A. Davis, county road patrolman, Saturday night, Bert Cleveland, Clarksburg, O., is being held in the County Jail pending arraignment before Probate Judge S. C. Wright on a charge of operating an auto while intoxicated. When the officer searched the machine he discovered two pints of alleged whiskey, he reported.

TRIED FOR MURDER

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Nov. 18.—Salvatore Acquista, is to go on trial here today for the murder of Pietro De Barrado, October 12, 1929, during a Columbus Day celebration.

Acquista, whose arrest was caused by his wife in Waukegan, Ill., is charged with second-degree murder.

PAIR SEEKS TO ABSOLVE MOONEY IN BOMBING

Mrs. George Monroe, left, of Bellaire, O., and A. L. Smith, right, her brother, may bring about the release of Tom Mooney, labor leader, serving a life term in San Quentin prison, California, convicted of participation in the San Francisco preparedness day bombing in 1916. Mrs. Monroe and Smith declare that their brother, Lewis Smith, who died in Cleveland in 1922, confessed to them that he had been paid to commit the outrage. Center photos show Mooney at the time he entered San Quentin, above, and as he appears today.

Campaign To Fill Xenia's Community Chest Starts Tuesday; Smith Talks

TUESDAY morning it will be "over the top" for the opening of the 1929 Xenia Community Chest campaign.

Not a suggestion, not a hint of defeat is heard anywhere in the ranks of those whose task it will be to raise the city's standing high on the hills of civic virtue.

After weeks of preparation, Edwin Galloway, general chairman of the second annual campaign, and his aides announced Monday that, insofar as they are able to ascertain, every obstacle to the success of the drive has been eliminated.

As things now stand, citizens of Xenia are asked merely to do their share toward caring for the helpless and unfortunate within the city's gates and also support character-building agencies, and they may rest assured that except for legitimate expense of the campaign, every cent contributed to the 1929 fund will be used for that purpose—and that purpose alone next year.

The personnel of the 1929 campaign is impressive, in that it contains the names of scores of men and women who have played prominent parts in the economic, social and cultural advancement of the city. A glance at the list inspires confidence in the entire project.

A final campaign rally to which all chest workers and all others interested are invited to attend will be held in the assembly room in the basement of the Court House promptly at 7:15 o'clock Monday evening with Attorney Howard Smith, prominent Dayton lawyer and former Ohio Kiwanis governor, delivering the principal address. Afterward the solicitors, numbering nearly 140, who will make a house-to-house canvass of the city starting Tuesday, will receive their final instructions and will be issued cards and receipt books.

BELIEVE TOLEDO DETECTIVE SLEW WIFE, THEN KILLED SELF

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 18.—A Sunday afternoon caller chanced upon a dual tragedy when he went to the home of Detective John P. Henahan, 45, and found both Henahan and his wife dead from gunshot wounds.

Detectives, fellow-officers of Henahan, who were investigating the deaths today, are of the opinion that Henahan shot and killed his wife following a domestic quarrel and then committed suicide by firing two bullets into his own body.

Henahan's body was found in a downstairs room in a pool of blood, while his wife's was covered with a sheet in the bedroom. His wife, Helen, was 38 years of age.

Herman Wadel, a brother of Mrs. Henahan, found the body of Henahan and police who rushed to the scene located the dead form of the wife.

The shooting is believed to have taken place sometime early Saturday. Henahan was head of the auto squad and was one of the best known members of the local police department.

COMMUNIST LEADER PUNISHED BY STALIN

MOSCOW, Nov. 18.—Determination of the Stalin regime in Soviet Russia to tolerate no opposition was demonstrated again today with expulsion of Mikolai Bucharin, prominent leader of the Communist party, from the political bureau of the central committee of that organization.

Alexis Rykoff and Michael Tomsky, also members of the bureau, were warned if they continued opposition to the Communist party they would be dealt with severely.

Following Bucharin's expulsion, four of his chief aides, Kotov, Uglanov, Kuklakov and Michaelov, deserted the right opposition and swung over to the Communist party.

SANDUSKY, O., Nov. 18.—"Frightened to death when chased by a goose" is the verdict. Coronor A. R. Grierson was expected to file today in the death of three-year-old Priscilla Shiveck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Shiveck of Lorain.

The child, who, with her parents, was visiting friends on a farm near here, fell dead as she was running away from a large goose while playing about the farm yard.

SINCLAIR WILL GET FREEDOM FROM JAIL WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Oil Magnate's Term Expires; Will Go To New York

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Harry F. Sinclair, the oil magnate, started on the last lap today of his long jail sentence.

Jail doors will swing outward Wednesday midnight for Sinclair. His nine-month term, with time off for good behavior, expires November 21, and the oil king is expected to lose no time in getting out of Washington with its distasteful memories. He probably will catch a midnight train for New York.

Sinclair has had a somewhat enjoyable time "kidding" the three Washington Times reporters, who are serving forty-five-day sentences for contempt of court, growing out of their refusal to reveal to the district grand jury their sources of information concerning vice conditions in the capital.

The oil magnate's long stay in jail appears to have benefited him physically. The plain fare and regular hours have reduced somewhat his waistline. He is lighter and more rugged—so much so, in fact, that a few days ago in a friendly sparring contest with one of the reporters Sinclair scored a technical knockout.

In failing the reporter struck the edge of a cot, raising a sizeable lump on the jaw.

"I'd like to see all reporters with jaws like that," said Sinclair, affably, after he had treated his assistant to the jail physicians.

MARKET IS NORMAL—OPENS IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Just to show how normal it was, the market opened irregularly, with only small variations from Friday's close—a typical normal Monday opening.

Even group issues were divided as to a definite trend, but it appeared that the upgrade had the edge.

For example, Anaconda opened at 82 1/2, down 7-8, while its market shadow, Kennecott, opened at 66 7/8, up 2-3.

U. S. Steel was down 3-4 at 163 1/2; Chesapeake and Ohio up 3 at 185; American Tel. and Tel. down 7-8 at 219; Radio up 1-2 at 33; Sears Roebuck up 1-4 at 94 1/4; Montgomery Ward down 3-8 at 57.

ZANESVILLE, O., Nov. 18.—Four-year-old Russell Kokensparger was suffering from a slight cold yesterday. The little tot is dead today.

His mother, who was fearful of the boy's health, took him to a doctor. The medical man prescribed a bottle of cough medicine. Russell's mother gave the lad a dose of the liquid. She left the bottle on a table and went out of the room.

Russell procured the half-pint container and drank the contents. He died four hours later in a hospital.

STORIES OF SISTER AND BROTHER PROVE MOONEY INNOCENT

Dead Man Accused Of Bomb-Throwing By Relatives

BELLAIRE, O., Nov. 18.—The stories that were told by two eastern Ohio mountaineers and which were substantiated by two others, and which tended to clear Thomas J. Mooney, "life-terminer" in a California prison, of any connection with the Preparedness Day bombing outrage in San Francisco, July 22, 1916, have received an unusual corroboration.

Louis Smith, ex-convict, purported former German spy, and "soldier of fortune," has been named as the real perpetrator of the bombing which caused the death of ten persons and which resulted in the injury of two score more.

Mrs. Dora E. Monroe, sister of Smith, and wife of George Monroe, a mountaineer, who claims he has several notches in his gun, declared in an affidavit, which is in possession of International News Service that her brother, Louis, had confessed to her that he was the one "who threw the bomb into that crowd." Thomas Mooney, Smith told his sister, according to the affidavit, "was not even present."

A. L. Smith, of Wheeling, W. Va., a brother of Louis, who described his brother as a "liar, a jailbird and a thief," in a signed statement which is also in possession of International News Service, substantiated Mrs. Monroe's story, but later repudiated his statement.

When this writer attempted interview him at his humble home, his son, who called his father "Pap," answered the door and threatened to shoot the writer with a shotgun.

It was learned authoritatively, however, that A. L. Smith denied his story because he is afraid he and his wife might be subpoenaed to appear in California. His wife is a peaked, lanky woman and sickly. She could never stand the trip to California, relatives declared.

The Monroe home is in the isolated "Valley of Nine," so-called because of two tragedies which occurred there, each of which claimed nine lives. One was a mine disaster and the other a flood. To reach the Monroe shack, it was necessary to park the automobile about a mile distant and follow a rough path and ford two creeks through a wilderness valley.

There, in a lean-to affair kitchen—the unpainted house has no sitting room or parlor—Mrs. Monroe repeated the story which was told in her affidavit, stating that her brother, Louis Smith, was guilty of the bombing outrage.

The woman, who keeps her house scrupulously clean, and who at one time last week threatened newspapermen with a shotgun, remembered vaguely of other bombings but could state no specific details.

Ott Monroe, a son, corroborated his mother's statement, as did another son, Joe. The latter said he was present when Louis Smith told his mother about the bombing.

"Uncle Lou sat over there," he said, pointing and then he designated where his mother and himself had been seated on that spring day in 1921 when Louis is said to have confessed to the San Francisco bombing.

Accompanying the writer, was Chief of Police Frank Moran, of Bellaire.

He said it was the code of the mountaineer to keep silent about other people's affairs and ascribed this as the reason that the stories are first being told after Mooney has served thirteen years in prison.

Mrs. Monroe said she had kept her brother's secret for these many years because of a promise to him. Louis Smith, she said, died in Cleveland in 1922. He was married. She did not know the address of his wife.

A. L. Smith, in his statement, said that his brother had been arrested in connection with the activities of German spies on the west coast. The statement follows: "Louis told me about the San Francisco bombing on three different occasions. It was late in the year of 1916, I believe. He was visiting."

FEAR FOR LIFE OF WAR SECRETARY

RECENT PHOTO

SWORN IN AS SECY OF WAR, MARCH, 1929

Characteristic views of James W. Good, secretary of war in President Hoover's cabinet, whose condition has been reported serious following an operation for appendicitis at Washington, D. C. He is shown as a member of congress from Iowa, in 1912; as Herbert Hoover's campaign manager in 1928; being sworn in as secretary of war in March, 1929, and at his first official review of troops.

BOTTLES LOST-UP GOES MILK

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—If the American people would refrain from using milk bottles for jam, kerosene, paint and other household uses, they would save a loss of $20,000,000 in the nation's annual bill for milk bottles amounting to $30,000,000, dairy experts of the department of agriculture said today.

Last year in one large city, junk men picked off the city dumps 20,000,000 milk bottles which had been thrown away, and these bottles had a value of more than $1,000,000.

These practices, the experts say, add materially to the consumer's milk bill.

MUSKINGUM RIVER REPORTED RISING

ZANESVILLE, O., Nov. 18.—The Muskingum River here has risen four feet in the last twenty-four hours. No alarm is being felt today, however.

The river stood at 17.2 feet this morning. Flood stage is twenty-five feet. It is expected to rise to more than twenty feet.

Lowlands at White Cottage and Dresden are inundated but no damage has resulted.

AUTO KILLS GIRL

BELLHOPS RUN DRUG STORE

Thrift Club Invests In Akron Business As Financial Side Line.

AKRON, O., Nov. 18.—The newest and perhaps the most unique business organization in Akron today is composed of hotel bellhops who have bought out and started operation of a drug store here.

The bellhop financiers began modestly as a thrift club more than eighteen months ago, the members of which contributed a quarter daily to a general fund. Recently the fund totalled $1,600. Deciding to put their capital to work, the bellhops organized as a business group and bought a drug store, using $1,500 as a down payment.

The business organization is just like any other, except that its members are all bellhops. It has the necessary officers and the drug store is operated on a strictly business-like basis. Dr. Emmet A. Hogan, a graduate in pharmacy of Howard University, has been added to the organization and is pharmacist at the store.

PRESIDENT HOOVER MAY PICK DELEGATES TO LONDON MEETING

Expected To Settle Dispute Between Navy And State

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Differences between the state and navy departments over policies and personnel in the make-up of the American delegation to the London naval conference have reached a point where President Hoover is expected to take a hand in the settlement.

Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones, U. S. N., retired, who was a delegate and chief naval adviser at the ill-fated Geneva conference, and who has rather positive ideas concerning American naval policy, has indicated that he will not accept appointment to the London conference under the state department's arrangement, which calls for Jones and Admiral Wm. V. Pratt, to be the chief naval advisers.

Pratt, still in the service, is a full admiral and would out-rank Jones, with whom he has had differences on matters of naval policy. Pratt was one of the advisers at the Washington conference in 1921, and some of the "big navy" men have never liked the character of the naval advice while the American delegates received at that conference.

Jones, at Geneva two years ago, stood steadfastly for cruiser parity with Great Britain, and ultimately saw the collapse of the conference rather than yield the point. As a retired officer of the navy, Jones is under no compulsion to serve unless he wants to. He has, however, been one of the principal advisers to President Hoover in the preliminaries of arranging the naval accord with Great Britain, and it is believed President Hoover would be loath to have him left off the delegation.

AMERICAN STOCKS ON RISE IN LONDON

LONDON, Nov. 18.—American securities on the London Stock Exchange continued to move upward in today's trading. The United States Steel was quoted at 165 1/2 as compared with its New York closing price of 164 1/4. Radio sold at 35 against its New York close of 32 1/2. Other quotations of New York stocks as against New York closing figures are Union Pacific 222 against 218; Erie 51 1/2 against 49 1/2; Southern Railway 129 against 127; Chesapeake 185 against 182; and Canadian Pacific 208 against 203.

DIAMOND TRADE HIT
ANTWERP, Nov. 18.—The recent Wall Street slump is being blamed here for the present critical condition in the diamond trade. Thirteen big diamond plants were expected to shut down today and many expert workers face idleness.

SINKING STEADILY SAY PHYSICIANS AS DEATH IS EXPECTED

Complications After Operation Too Much For Official

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—All hope of saving the life of Secretary of War James W. Good was abandoned shortly after 7 o'clock this morning.

The physicians watching by his bedside, estimated he might live a few hours, but they were expecting death momentarily.

"There is no hope," was the word from the sickroom. Shortly before 9 a. m., the secretary appeared to be nearing the end. He was sinking steadily and was having difficulty in breathing.

Mrs. Good and her two sons, James W. Jr., and Robert Edmond, were at the bedside. Mrs. Good, worn out by her five days' vigil, was somewhat unsteady.

At 10 a. m. it was stated at the hospital that "death is momentarily expected."

Administration of oxygen alone kept Secretary Good alive through last night.

This morning, he was barely conscious, and the physicians treating him awaited the end at any moment despite the heroic measures to which they had resorted.

The 63-year-old cabinet officer had expended all of his reserve strength during the last twenty-four hours in a vain effort to rally from the many complications that have set in since his operation last Wednesday for appendicitis, and the blood poisoning that has overrun his system seemed to have the upper hand.

No formal bulletin on the war secretary's condition has been issued since five o'clock yesterday afternoon. The doctors confined all their efforts to retaining that one flickering spark of life. The last official word said merely that Good was making "a valiant fight."

His age, however, weighed in the balance against him.

The immediate family—Mrs. Good and her two sons—maintained a despairing vigil through the night. They had been told that death was only a matter of hours.

TWO SCHOOLS WILL DROP WITTENBERG

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 18.—International News Service definitely learned today that two universities in the Buckeye Athletic Association, will not schedule Wittenberg, another "Big Six" school, for a gridiron tilt next year. This indicates that Wittenberg will be dropped from that conference.

The facilities and coaches of the two schools are adverse to meeting the Springfield team on the football field, it was learned.

Charges that Wittenberg had subsidized athletes were made at the annual meeting of conference officials last year.

At that time, a couple of schools wanted to sever relations with Wittenberg but upon promises that Wittenberg would "clean house" they agreed to play the Lutherans.

But the two schools will stand pat on their intentions not to schedule Wittenberg next year, it was authoritatively learned today.

SIXTEEN ESCAPE IN COUNTY JAIL PLOT

MADISONVILLE, Ky., Nov. 18.—County and state authorities are searching today for sixteen prisoners who yesterday made a successful prison break from the county jail here by drilling through a 12-inch brick wall.

One prisoner, William Pillow, a negro, was captured immediately following the jail delivery and was returned to the jail.

The nine white and six colored men who gained freedom brought the total of men who have escaped from the local jail to twenty-four since November 2.

BEST FOR PLANTING SHRUBS IS REPORT

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 18.—November is the ideal month for planting shrubs, and plantings projected for any time during the next year should be finished by the end of this month if possible, says Victor H. Ries, extension specialist in horticulture for the Ohio State University here.

It is better to buy vigorous shrubs, two or even three years old, is Ries' advice. "They will have better root systems and will give quicker results and surer results under poor growing conditions, than the younger plants," Ries asserts that any shrub which can be grown in Ohio can be and should be purchased from the nurseries in the state.

He urges that the shrubs be planted as soon as they are received, or else unpacked and the roots completely buried in a trench. When it comes to the actual planting, it is necessary to dig a hole large enough so that all the roots on the plant may be spread out comfortably. "Fill in the best soil around the roots and stamp firmly so there are no air holes. If the soil is very poor it may be advisable to obtain good soil and fill in around the roots with that. The poorer and harder the soil, the larger the hole which should be dug. The plants should be set in the ground to the same depth at which they are growing in the nursery. Unless the root system is adequate, it may be well to remove about one-third of the top of the shrub after it is planted."

Barnyard manure, if available, makes a beneficial mulch applied liberally over the surface of the ground. Peat moss, straw, or leaves may also be used, but should be supplemented in the spring with commercial fertilizer, says Ries.

STATE RENEWS 765 ENGINEER LICENSES

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 18.—The state division of steam engineers granted renewal licenses to 765 engineers and 802 boiler operators during October, the monthly report of David J. Lewis, chief of the division, shows.

Although sixty-one applicants took the examination for steam engineers, only twenty-two were granted licenses. Fifty boiler operators passed and 132 failed, according to the report.

Receipts for the division during the month were $1,349.

PLANE TALK

By HARRY A. SUTTON
Of the Technical Staff,
The Aviation Corporation
(Written expressly for International News Service)

15. Climbs and Glides

As the pilot becomes more familiar with his ship and engine, he will come to know the speed at which it climbs best. This will be the speed at which it will ascend swiftest and strongest but not too fast to lose flying speed and stall. Climbing upward from a take-off, it is the best practice to rev up the engine to its maximum r. p. m.'s because of the proximity of the ground. Once the plane reaches safer altitudes, the engine may be throttled to cruising speed which is all necessary for ascending still higher.

Gliding is a maneuver which even the experienced pilot may well keep practicing for it is a preliminary to all landings. In gliding, the motor is throttled down and the nose of the plane permitted to drop sufficiently far below the horizon to give it flying speed slightly higher than the landing speed. This speed will be attained slowly or quickly according to the gentleness or steepness of the glide.

To turn in a glide, the plane should first attain greater speed than is needed for a straight glide. Control in straight climbs and glides is effected fundamentally by the elevator alone although some slight corrective use of rudder and ailerons is also frequently required. (Dives and stalls will be the subject of tomorrow's article of Plane Talk).

COMMUNITY CHEST IN YELLOW SPRINGS AMOUNTS TO $1,617

The second annual Community Chest fund drive conducted in Yellow Springs and Miami Twp, ended Saturday night with the final report showing contributions amounting to $1,617, which exceeded by $17 the goal set for the campaign.

The drive lasted six days and was held under the direction of Carl Draz, chairman of the campaign committee.

Eight charitable and character-building agencies will derive support from the fund in 1930. They are: Parent-Teacher Association, Social Service League, American Red Cross, Colored Welfare League, Boy Scouts, Colored Nursery School, Library Association and the Greene County Health League.

Quota raised during the drive just ended is an increase of $800 over last year's goal.

An Ailing CHILD

Are you prepared to render first aid and quick comfort the moment your youngster has an upset of any sort? Could you do the right thing—immediately—though the emergency came without warning—perhaps tonight? Castoria is a mother's standby at such times. There is nothing like it in emergencies, and nothing better for everyday use. For a sudden attack of colic, or the gentle relief of constipation; to allay a feverish condition, or to soothe a fretful baby that can't sleep. This pure vegetable preparation is always ready to ease an ailing youngster. It is just as harmless as the recipe on the wrapper reads. If you see Chas. H. Fletcher's signature, it is genuine Castoria. It is harmless to the smallest infant; doctors will tell you so.

You can tell from the recipe on the wrapper how mild it is, and how good for little systems. But continue with Castoria until a child is grown.

The World And All

OF MANY THINGS

Will the women accept the decrees of the manufacturers as to wearing long skirts? That seems to be the chief topic of conversation among the women I meet and overhear. Many say they'll never consent to look old and foolish just to please the people who make cloth. Others say it's time we were going back to those graceful long skirts. Well, I have a scheme that would solve the problem perfectly. Let those who want long skirts wear them, and those who want short skirts wear 'em short. Why

Recently I met Governor Al Smith at a literary tea. He was the central figure. The publishers were celebrating Al's new book, "Up to Now," and it was Al's first taste of literary celebrity. He took it gracefully, indeed. I talked to him briefly of the first time I met him. It was on the night of his first election to the office of governor, when I went to interview him for a press association. Of course he remembered, and added details to my description of the night's festivities.

At another party recently Jim stayed and Fred Keating performed magic tricks. Magic is the entertainment that's never lost its charm for children. My two daughters will never forget that Keating plucked handfuls of money out of their hair and shoved a cigar through their heads without their feeling it.

A doctor thinks he can control cancer. He's not sure, because he has only mice and guinea pigs to experiment upon. Too bad the laws do not permit him to verify his experiments by using the three bank bandits and murderers recently convicted in Lamar, Colo. These fellows wantonly slew a doctor whom they kidnapped and forced to dress their wounds. How appropriate it would be to make them pay back their debt to medicine and humanity by submitting to experi-

COUNTY'S FIRST VICTIM OF HUNTING SEASON DIES HERE

Greene County's first fatality of the rabbit hunting season was recorded when Clement Hampton, 17, living on the Clifton Pike, near Yellow Springs, died at McClellan Hospital at 7:45 a. m. Sunday from injuries suffered last Friday morning.

Blood poisoning which developed in a gunshot wound in the left thigh, accidentally self-inflicted, and shock, caused his death.

The accident occurred not far from the youth's home, Hampton and several companions were hunting rabbits. It is said Hampton was carrying a double-barreled shot gun while both hammers cocked. After firing at a rabbit from a tree stump he stepped off to follow it, lost his balance and fell. The second barrel was discharged and the lead of buck shot entered the inner side of the left thigh near the hip, shattering the bone and badly lacerating the leg.

Hampton was a step-son of David Sutton with whom he made his home on the Harry Sutton farm, Clifton Pike. Funeral services will be conducted at the Sutton residence Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Interment will take place in Glen Forest Cemetery, Yellow Springs.

TRAFFIC OFFICER TALKS ON SAFETY TO SCHOOL PUPILS

First step in the organization of a "Safety Patrol" among pupils of the Xenia public schools was taken Monday morning when Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, gave safety talks before grade school children at the McKinley, Spring Hill, Orient Hill and Lincoln buildings.

Pupils designated by school authorities to act as junior traffic officers at dangerous street intersections near schools are to be provided with signs bearing the warning "School—Go Slow." This inscription is on a round disc atop six-foot orange standards.

Pupils of the elementary grades will be instructed by more experienced students of the upper grades how to operate the traffic signs and the experiment was tried for the first time at 11:30 a. m. Monday when the grades were dismissed.

In his talks on safety, Patrolman Shagin impressed the grade children with the fact that sidewalks are intended for pedestrians and streets for vehicular traffic. He pointed out that it is just as ridiculous for children to walk in the street as it would be for automobiles to be driven on the sidewalks.

It is planned to have the junior traffic cops keep a check on all jay-walking of school children and possibly a traffic court will be held over which Shagin will preside and before which traffic violators will be brought.

The student officers will make no attempt to direct traffic but will call attention of motorists to the danger of hitting school children by whirling the signs and blowing a whistle with which each student will also be equipped.

Has the laxative in your home a family doctor's approval?

MOST of us value our health too much to purposely neglect ourselves when we are warned of constipation by bad breath, feverishness, biliousness, a headache, lack of appetite, or that weak, helpless feeling. The continuation of our trouble is more often due to the things we do rather than the things we leave undone.

Some things people do to help the bowels really weaken these organs. Only a doctor knows what things will cleanse the system without harm. That's why the laxative in your home should have a family doctor's approval.

A wonderful product now known to millions of people as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a family doctor's prescription for sluggish bowels. It never varies from the original

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

AN INSIGHT ON FAITH—Jesus looked up, and saw the rich men casting their gifts into the treasury. And he saw also a certain poor widow casting in thither two mites. And he said, Of a truth I say unto you, that this poor widow hath cast in more than they all: For all these have of their abundance cast in unto the offerings of God; but she of her penury hath cast in all the living that she had. —Luke 21:1, 2, 3, 4.

TAX REDUCTION

In announcing that, with the approval of President Hoover, he intends to recommend to congress changes in schedules that will effect a reduction of approximately $160,000,000 in income taxes to be collected next year, Secretary Mellon gives a practical expression of expert opinion regarding the economic and financial condition and prospects of the United States, which is extremely valuable just at this time.

With an increase in the total national budget a certainty, the proposal by the secretary of the treasury is founded on an assumption that the income of the government also will grow in spite of the reduction he suggests. In other words, the secretary foresees general business and industrial advancement sufficient to produce under tax schedules less exacting than those now existing, a net government income that will cover the rising federal expense.

All of which means that in the opinion of Mr. Mellon, who knows as much about such matters as most men do, and is not given to rose-colored visions, the hurricanes in Wall street are having little or no real effect upon the economic condition and outlook of the country, and are a thing apart from the business and industrial world except as the two impinge in a minor, incidental way.

That view is manifestly sound. American prosperity is founded upon something much more solid and substantial than the ups and downs of a small number of people who spend their time gambling in stocks. It is in no wise dependent upon variations in paper profits and losses.

What count are the situation of the steady, substantial people of the nation, the buying ability of those who work instead of gambling for a living, the condition of the markets, both domestic and world wide, the general will and temper of the country. And careful analysis made for the purpose of arriving at facts, indicate that the position of the United States today is distinctly good, with everything suggesting continuance of progress and prosperity.

It is true that for the moment there are "spots" where things could stand improvement, but that is always bound to be the case. On the other hand, the reports indicate that agriculture is solidly prosperous. The failure in the Argentine has made things particularly favorable for the grain grower; and with the farm board in operation, the man who makes his living off the land finds himself in a position to get the good prices he ought to receive. This will give him buying power, and a country is bound to be economically happy when its farmers are good customers of its merchants and manufacturers. Coming closer home, it is a matter of record that the market for automobiles is opening up in almost every quarter of the globe in a way that presages an expanding market for years to come.

These things are significant of the conditions which are to exist in America next year and the year following and long after the spectacular storms of the fall of 1929 in Wall street have been forgotten except by a few people.

FOILED

The smallest piece of real estate in New York is situated at Christopher Street and Seventh Avenue at the entrance to a United Cigar store. It's a plot about one foot in size. Realtors in the neighborhood are said to have offered fabulous sums for it and investigations revealed that the real estate sharps had planned to buy the land, erect a typopole on it, blocking the entrance to the cigar store, and thus causing the United out.

But the dastardly scheme was foiled and the stogie shop was saved.

THE WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

OUR CURIOSITY

We human beings are willing to pay millions to satisfy our curiosity about ourselves. The appropriation of government money to meet the cost of taking the census of 1930 will be about $30,000,000. The mere enumeration of the population is a small part of the work. There will be a vast collection of varied information about us and our activities. There will be a manufacturing and distribution census. It will be discovered how many things have been manufactured and how many have been sold. When the results of this amazing census have been published we of the United States should know "where we are at."

ABOUT WHAT?

One thing the census takers will probably not find out. It is the most important thing, and the thing we most want to know. They will tell us how many we are, how big we are, how much money we make. But they can't tell us what it's all about. They can't tell us why we are here and where we are going.

TAKING STOCK OF MAN

These census takers will not be able to take the human being apart and set him down in neat rows of figures and statistical tables. They cannot explain to us the mystery of his behavior, the strength of his impulses, the capacity he has for repression or expression, his amazing lack of rationalism, his vanity, his generosity or his pettiness. They cannot measure his will power, his capacity for resistance, his ideals and his failures. All that, put into a census, would be informing. Knowing all that, or half that, would be worth while.

AS TO FREEDOM

The wise old Epictetus said that "he is free who lives as he chooses." That is an entirely unsound idea even though it may in a way be true. No one in the world can live exactly as he chooses. Inasmuch as most of us would part of the time choose things that would be bad for us, it is fortunate that law and custom prevent us from having absolute freedom of choice. Adjustment to the best thought in civilization and a disposition to be harmonious in human relationships is much better than the entirely imaginative idea of complete freedom.

Who's Who and Timely Views

By A. LAWRENCE LOWELL, President of Harvard University (Abbott Lawrence Lowell was born at Boston, Mass., Dec. 13, 1855. He is a graduate of Harvard and received a Ph. D. degree from five foreign universities and honorary degrees from some 14 other universities. From 1889 to 1879 he practiced law in Boston. He was professor of government at Harvard from 1890 to 1900 and has been president of that university since the latter date. The temptation to go to the devil increases directly with the age rather than being strongest in the young. Found mothers are afraid to let their sons go off to college at a young age for fear they will become speedily enmeshed in sin are mistakenly apprehensive.

The fact that the average age of college freshmen has been reduced a whole year to eighteen years and four months since 1890 is eminently desirable. In the future there will be still greater reductions.

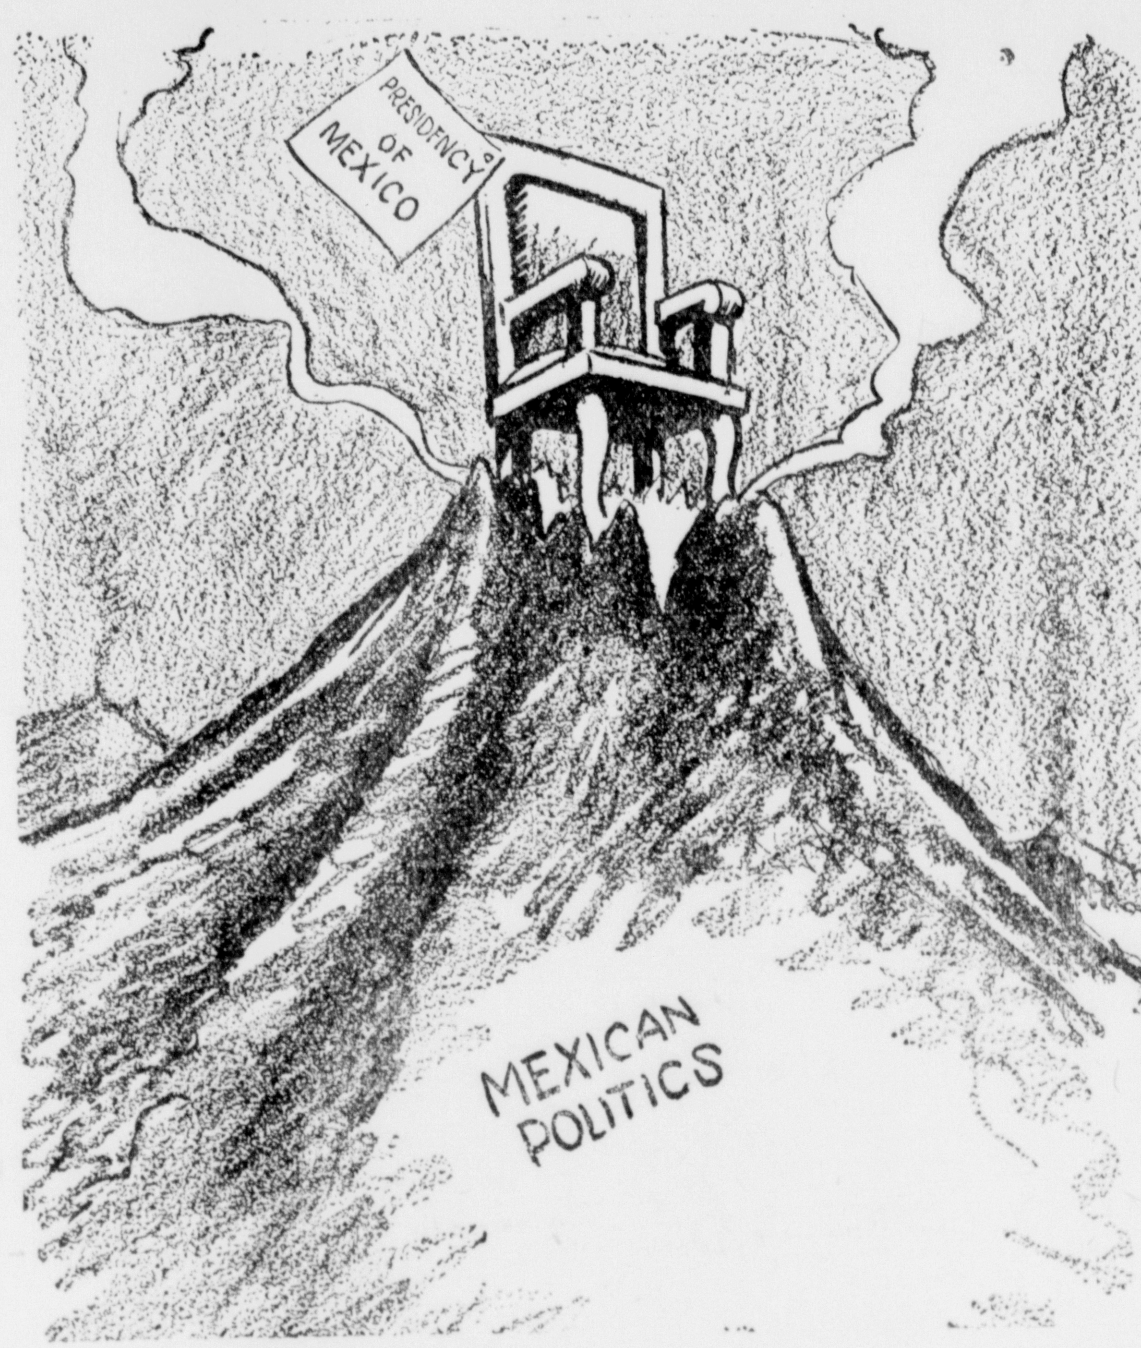

If only the dear mothers who are afraid of their boys going to college so early would look over our figures at Harvard, they would see that the temptation to go to the devil increases with age. Anybody who knows anything about the devil understands this. The younger the boys are the better scholars they are and the better behaved they are.

My great-grandfather sent my grandfather to college at the age of thirteen, too young to dissipate. It worked out exceptionally well. Young boys think they're hell-raising when they go so far as to smoke a cigaret, but the older boy goes to drink to get his thrill. The older they get the greater the length to which they will go for excitement, and at 40 a man does really vicious things. That's why college is no place for older men. There is a time to study and a time to work and a time to wed.

Students used to enter college at a very young age, but the effect of raising collegiate standards and widening the range of requirements 75 years ago was to lift the average age of freshman. By the middle 1850's the average age had gone up to 17 years and ten months, and continued to increase steadily thereafter. The climax was reached at 19 years and four months between 1886 and 1890. Since then, however, the age of freshmen has dropped a whole year.

Those who think that college men spend too much time in formal study before getting to work, propose to cut the college span from four to three years. Better than this, is to let students in at a younger age than even now.

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

I have spent my time discussing the manner in which women in different walks of life budget for beauty. I do not want to leave this subject without telling you a little about the mature woman whose income permits the most luxurious kinds of beauty treatments. There are a number of such women who patronize the very best beauty salons, both in this country and abroad. Some of them pay yearly for treatments in advance, which may take in branch salons of the world—there in Paris, London, South America—or wherever their travels may happen to take them. I know women who allow themselves $1,000 or $1,200 for a yearly course of facial treatments alone, which they take in any part of the world—two every week. Such women spend four or five hundred dollars on perfumes which are especially prepared for them by leading perfumers.

There is a special kind of permanent which such a woman prefers. It does not last as long as the ordinary one, but it looks more natural, and so she permits herself four a year, totaling $140. Her 52 manicures throughout the year cost $50 without the tips, and she tips very generously.

Speaking of figures—If senators were awarded to the various states on population basis, which quite a few statesmen are expressing themselves in favor of, if only they could change the constitution to permit it—It would be impossible to allot more than one senator to any state which now has fewer than seven representatives, or it would make the upper house of congress as unwieldy as the lower one, and everyone agrees that that would be terrible.

For example, New York's senators would run to 40-odd. On the basis, then, of one senator (the smallest of them would have to have one apiece at least) to each state with 1,463,701 inhabitants or less, with an additional senator for every additional 1,463,701 or fraction thereof (statistics as of the census of 1920) the lineup would be like this: One senator each—Arizona, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Idaho, Maine, Maryland, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Dakota, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Utah, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia and Wyoming.

Two senators each—Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Minnesota, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia and Wisconsin. Three senators each—California, Indiana, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri and New Jersey. Four senators each—Ohio and Texas. Five senators—Illinois. Six senators—Pennsylvania. Eight senators—New York. Or 97 senators in all—one more than today, to break ties, instead of the vice president.

Every week her hair is washed, the wave is set and her scalp is given special care. This requires $150 yearly. Then there are very luxuriant hand treatments, carrying a charge of approximately $5, or six treatments for $25, and this generally amounts up to about $150 a year; special massages for the back and arms, bath salts, talcum and unusual toilet waters make $500 more. Her beauty preparations for home use are applied with a lavish hand, and often cost from $2,500 or $3,000 for the year. If any of you will take the trouble to add up these various sums, you will find that this elegant lady spends approximately over $5,000 a year on keeping herself beautiful. Staggering figures! I am not suggesting that many of my readers attempt to emulate this lady, but I do think it is interesting information, particularly to so many women who will not even permit themselves the luxury of a facial or a hair wash. Both of these represent extremes.

But every modern woman should know that the loveliest clothes in the world will not make her distinctly chic unless she is perfectly groomed.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Who cares if the market did slump? Two hundred and ninety individual American incomes exceeded a million apiece in 1927, or 62 more such incomes than the year before. Secretary Mellon's internal revenue bureau, in giving out this information, does not say whether or not any of the country's 290 biggest coupon-clippers were caught in the latest Wall Street crash and subsided below the million-dollar level again.

The treasury does not keep that closely up to date. Probably, however, none did. The stock exchange debris having been partially swept up, it is understood in federal reserve circles that the "big fellows" as so often happens, emerged from the jam practically unimpaired—mostly, in fact, just the reverse; only the peewees were cleaned out.

Secretary Mellon's cheerful report was made Assistant Commerce Secretary Julius Klein's optimistic announcement that "business is fundamentally sound." It supported Dr. Klein's statement admirably, revealing that the total 1927 emoluments of the 290 richest folk in the United States were $900,640,846—if there were any odd cents the internal revenue bureau omitted them; so that, evidently, some of the 290 incomes referred to not only exceeded a million each, but exceeded it considerably.

Such figures hardly suggest a financially embarrassed Santa Claus next month—in at least 290 homes, anyway; out of America's 25,000,000 or thereabouts. Arithmetically minded people can go on ciphering as long as they like. For instance—suppose America's 290 richest families were dependent, for their point $900,640,846, upon contributions from the rest of us of $100 each; it would take 6,006,408 of us to make up the jackpot—and it would be $40 shy even then. But that would scarcely be fair. A good many families could not afford a $100 assessment. Say we confine our levy to those sufficiently well-to-do to pay income taxes of their own. There are 2,440,941 of them. They average in-

Cook until mixture looks transparent, then remove from fire and add grated rind of orange and butter, then the juice of the orange. Serve on steamed pudding.

Hint for Mothers
When giving a small baby cod liver oil from a spoon, try holding a quarter of a paper napkin under her chin. This will prevent the ugly odour stains from soiling her clothing. The napkins may be purchased very cheaply and are well worth the cost.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

"Eye Blinders."
"Shall I pull down the curtains?" Ray asked, as I went to my bedroom to take a nap in the afternoon, after having studied one night recently until three in the morning.
"No," I answered. "It isn't necessary. Look!" and I clatted held up a little black silk eye blinder which a Mrs. S. S. sent me.
"Oh, that's going to be dandy," Ray smiled. "Too bad Mrs. S. didn't give her address so you could thank her isn't it?"
Well! I'll do it now. Thank you ever so much, Mrs. S. It certainly was nice of you.

You remember not long ago, one of the readers complained that when it became light in the morning she awoke and had a hard time to get to sleep again. I told her to put a dark cloth over her eyes, that when I sometimes experienced the same difficulty I used a pair of black silk stockings, one drawn within the other, as a "blinder." Shortly afterwards, I received the one I mentioned, from Mrs. S., who said I'd find it much better than the one I was using. And I do. It is splendid. I'll describe it for those of you who are interested.
It consists of two thicknesses of black taffeta, with a piece cut out so it fits over the nose. It is about three inches wide over the eyes and about eight inches long. At each side is a little white tape, just long enough to fit over the ears, one end sewed on to the top and the other to the bottom.

"Dear Doctor: If you have an article on body odors, will you please send it to me? No doubt you will laugh at me, but there is certainly something wrong with my husband and me. We went to an ear, nose and throat specialist for an examination, and he treated our nasal catarrh, but laughed at us when we asked him if he could detect the odor. It is almost two months now that it has been about us, and we cannot find out where it comes from. Our friends notice it, and we notice it when we come in from outside. The odor is like that of a dead rat, and even our clothes smell from it. It is terribly embarrassing. Please help us."

MRS. Y.

Simple catarrh would not cause an odor such as you complain of, Mrs. Y. Infected sinuses with damaged up decomposing mucus and pus will give an exceedingly bad odor, but you evidently are not so afflicted.

It is possible the odor you complain of is what it smells like, Mrs. Y—a dead rat. Not infrequently rats may die in between partitions, and the odor from their decomposition is very terrible and penetrating. Report it to your landlord, and if he doesn't have it investigated, report it to your health department.

In a new apartment hotel that I was living in at one time, we had a bad odor which was finally traced to the concealed hot water pipes in the bathroom. They were leaking and the decomposing water caused the odor. Which shows you can't get away from such troubles occasionally, even in modern dwellings.

Bad odors, in themselves, will not cause disease—unless, of course, they should be so intense and prolonged that the disagreeable sensations they produce finally got on the nerves, depressed the appetite, etc., and in that way lowered the resistance.

For those who are interested, we have an article on Colds, Catarrh, etc. See column rules for obtaining this.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Queer, isn't it, the low-down, equal and a real companion. you tricks to which folks resort to bolster up their opinions of themselves, and the risks they run with their own happiness?

To what can we attribute the actions of the husband in the following letter but to an inferiority complex which he tries to quiet by making love to his wife's friends.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I have taken a dislike to my husband, but not without cause. I have thought of leaving him, but my idea of leaving is putting the miles behind, and so do this I will call it. I am a little worried. The thing that my husband does that is embarrassing to me is this: He tries to date up the women that come to visit me. He slips them love notes (I found several) and calls them on the telephone, sometimes asking for dates.

"His salary isn't sufficient to keep us without my help. Some have fallen for him, and he calls them the very lowest names behind their backs. I suggested once that we separate; if he was not satisfied, but he cried and took on so terribly. He said I was the only one he loved and wanted to stay with me always. Only yesterday he tried to date up a woman who visits us. Have you any suggestions?"
JUSTINE.

Do you love him, Justine? A good deal hangs on that. I'd like to advise you to leave him because you have a problem on your hands that I'm afraid will grow more perplexing as time goes on, unless you can have him psycho-analyzed and helped out of his abnormal state of mind.
Mentally he's not a grown man, but a child. He isn't competent to earn a living for his family and knows it, and to bolster up his self-esteem he tries to have affairs with women. He may not be a "man among men," but at least he'll be "devil with the ladies."

The question is: Do you want to continue to live with that kind of a person? If you love him, if you feel responsible for him to the extent that you are willing to sacrifice your chance of freedom with the possibility of later meeting someone who will be your mental

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

CLEVER CAMOUFLAGE

Among the green leaves of the rosebush Peter was sure he spied the hewite cap of Mrs. Rose Beetle, the lady of the house.
"Mrs. Rose Beetle is at home, I'm certain!" he cried. "This is housecleaning day for her. She is dusting off the rose's petals. Aren't you afraid she will spy us?"
"Pshaw! I never thought of that!" Father Beetle was a little worried. "If she should, it would spoil everything for us. She would give the alarm."
Biffer, however, was no dismayed. He scualed to the side of the path and, biting a leaf from a blackberry bush that trailed along the ground, held it in his mouth as he crawled toward his companions. The leaf was so wide Peter couldn't be seen. Biffer's little body at all behind its green shelter.

"Clever idea!" declared Father Beetle. "Come on, the rest of you, one at a time, and bite off a leaf shield. Hurry up, there's not a moment to be lost. The Garden Beetles will be here any time now. And all is lost if they see us. We must reach the shelter of that stone before they arrive."
Father Gun-Beetle hurried to the blackberry bush and bit off his shield, and the other beetles followed his example. Peter, not to be left out of things, did just as his new friends did. And as he and the Gun-Beetles, in single file, crawled toward the stone, a looker-on would have declared they were leaves swirled by the wind. Peter was sure Mrs. Rose Beetle would be fooled by the clever camouflage, and Lady Bird agreed with him. Lady Bird, however, was inclined to scoff at the performance.
"I feel so foolish carrying this thing in my mouth," said the "But look, boy. See those dust clouds that are stirring up the dust so if not Rose and Stag?"

Too Many Football Winners, Walsh Claims

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

Hats off to the ladies. Give Mrs. Anna Williams a great big hand as Tex Guilan would say. Forecasting the probable outcome of twenty-five collegiate football games Saturday, Mrs. Williams picked twenty winners and only five losers, her debut as a prediction expert being an excellent one. It might be well to leave all the predicting to female fans if her record Saturday may be taken as a criterion. With the season near a close local fans have selected a grand total of 110 winners against only forty-four losers for a percentage of 714. Mrs. Williams correctly picked these winners: Akron, 14; Case, 0. Pennsylvania, 20; Columbus, 0. Dartmouth, 18; Cornell, 14. Quazilio Mariani, 7; Dayton, 6. Harvard, 12; Holy Cross, 6. Illinois, 20; Chicago, 6. Ohio U., 40; Marietta, 0. Marquette, 20; Boston College, 6. New York U., 14; Missouri, 0. Notre Dame, 13; S. California, 12. Oberlin, 8; West Reserve, 6. Heidelberg, 24; Ohio Northern, 7. Ohio State, 54; Kenyon, 0. Ohio Wesleyan, 53; Cincinnati, 0. Pittsburgh, 34; Carnegie, 13. Colgate, 21; Syracuse, 0. Tennessee, 13; Vanderbilt, 0. Army, 89; Dickinson, 0. Navy, 61; Wake Forest, 0. Yale, 13; Princeton, 0.

She guessed wrong on these games: Michigan, 7; Minnesota, 6. Indiana, 19; Northwestern, 14. Purdue, 7; Iowa, 0. Georgetown, 7; St. Xavier, 0. Wash. and Jeff., 15; Wilberforce, 0.

Xenia Central and Sidney football teams, neither of which has won a game this season in the Miami Valley League, will dispute the league cellar championship in the final home appearance of the Bucs Friday afternoon at Cox Athletic Field.

Sidney, with an admittedly stronger team, is slightly better off than the Bucs, however, by virtue of a tie game it played with Miamiburg, the score being 7 to 7. Piqua nosed out Sidney, 3 to 0, and Troy beat Sidney, 6 to 0.

Xenia and Sidney have met on the gridiron only twice and Sidney won each game. In 1922, when football relations between the two schools began, Sidney spoiled an otherwise perfect Xenia record by winning, 7 to 0. The schools did not meet again until last year when Sidney was again victorious, 2 to 0.

This defeat, by a margin of a safety on a muddy gridiron, deprived the Bucs of the league title for it was Xenia's only league defeat all season, although two tie games were played against other league opponents.

It will be the gridiron swan song for nine senior members of Xenia Central's grid squad when the Bucs wind up the season against Springfield Thanksgiving Day. Joe Smittle, John Hurley, Harper Billmyre, John Pulliam, John Cooper, Kenneth Finlay and Theodore Patton will don grid togs for the last time. John Schleppi and Mike Monroe, also seniors, will be prevented by injuries from taking part in any more games.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Despite the fact that he has been out of action for two weeks because of injuries, Al Marsters of Dartmouth, today still leads in the race for individual football scoring honors in the east. NATIONAL TITLE CLOUDED BY CROWD OF UNDEFEATED TEAMS

Notre Dame, Pittsburgh, Purdue, California, Tennessee Among Teams That Can Finish In Victory Class; Dead Heat Is Indicated

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Intercollegiate football was beginning its run down the stretch today, with the wire only a few jumps ahead, and any man with a couple of eyes and the ambition to use both of them simultaneously can pick a winner at a glance. This, as a matter of fact, seems to be the abiding problem. There are too many winners. It is a simple matter to pick the leaders. They are Notre Dame, Pittsburgh, Purdue, Tennessee, California, Tulane, Texas Christian, Utah and possibly St. Mary's, Detroit, Southern Methodist and a few others. It only begins to get difficult when you try to distinguish one from the other with the idea of arriving at some degree of relative strength.

After its 13 to 12 victory over Southern California on Saturday, nobody can claim any national titles without first consulting Notre Dame. Yet the latter isn't even undisputed champion of the state of Indiana. For Purdue was as impressive as ever before in winning the Big Ten championship by beating Iowa, 7 to 0, and if it lasts through next Saturday, its status will be beyond the eloquence of debate.

Frankly, Purdue should finish its season undefeated. So should a Pittsburgh team that was great enough to run up 21 points on an archrival in the first period and finally give Carnegie Tech its worst beating of recent years, 34 to 13. It isn't likely, either, that anybody is going to stop Tennessee, Notre Dame, California or Utah. The Notre Dame situation isn't foolproof yet, with the Army and Northwestern coming up, and undoubtedly Texas Christian won't begin making plans for spring practice before it gets through with Southern Methodist. The rest of them may go wrong. But they probably won't.

U. therefore, seems probable that at least a half dozen teams will do what the taxi driver did on the day he didn't beat the railroad train to the crossing. They will run a dead heat, too.

Speaking of deaths, two of them died on Saturday when Cornell finished last behind Dartmouth by 18 to 14 and Texas lost to the Christians by 15 to 12. This pair of Southern leaders was crumpled early in the game but the Christians went crazier and won. They were the first team to score on Texas this year, leaving only St. Mary's with an uncrossed goal line, so far as I know. The latter beat California's southern branch by 24 to 0. As for Cornell, it was eliminated with a pass in his own territory with five minutes to play. That automatically made Cornell the worst team on the field.

Notre Dame's split-second victory over U. S. C. was a repetition of their 1926 game, as far as the score went. But, as far as the play went, it had no parallel. The Irish won this football game strictly on its merits, the Trojan scores coming on long-gain plays and their feared "power" attack being throttled down to nothing. They were out-rushed, out-passed and out-charged, according to the run of the play. In brief, the better team won.

There wasn't any doubt that this was so in Pitt's case. Tech, in fact, had a bearing on the general situation, in some cases, on nothing in particular, follows.

Detroit 25, Michigan State 0; Western 12, Maryland 6; Mt. St. Mary's 6; Davis-Elling 12; Villanova 6; Fordham 40; Thiel 7; Harvard 12; Holy Cross 6; New York University 14; Missouri 0; Bucknell 27; Penn State 6; Colgate 21; Syracuse 0; Pennsylvania 20; Columbus 0; Illinois 20; Chicago 6; Nebraska 13; Oklahoma 13, this one leaving the Big Six race in something of a snarl; Marquette 20; Boston College 6; Drake 7; Iowa State 0; Alabama 14; Georgia Tech 0; Florida 13; Clemson 7; Kentucky 23; V. M. I. 12; Maryland 24; V. P. I. 0; North Carolina 26; Davidson 7; Texas Aigles 26; Rice 6; Oregon 16; Oregon State 0; Washington State 13; Montana 0; Colorado 6; Colorado Aigles 0; Denver 13; Utah Aigles 0.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 18.—Lives of hundreds of bed-ridden patients, including twenty babies, some only a few days old, were endangered today when an explosion and fire wrecked the X-ray laboratory of the University of California Hospital here.

A short circuit in the electrical wiring leading to the X-ray apparatus was believed responsible for the fire, which caused damage estimated at $75,000.

WILBERFORCE BEATS KENTUCKY 13-0

VISITORS FURNISH REAL OPPOSITION BY STRONG DEFENSE

Regulars Score After Second Stringers Are Stopped

Meeting unexpectedly strong opposition, Wilberforce University's football team was held to two touchdowns but eked out a 13 to 0 victory over Kentucky State College, Frankfort, Ky., in an inter-sectional game at Wilberforce Saturday afternoon.

Over-confidence in a measure robbed Wilberforce of its offensive punch. The invading Kentucky team, which was light and had no semblance of an offense except Givens' toe and a defense that consisted of two tackles, a center and a left end, held Wilberforce to a total of six first downs.

Time after time throughout the game Miller and Evans, Kentucky tackles, broke through the Wilberforce forward wall and downed the ball-carriers in their tracks or with slight gains.

Kentucky played a strictly defensive game, content to hold the Bulldogs to as low a score as possible, and Givens would kick every time the visitors had possession of the ball. Even the battering assaults of Tynes were withstood remarkably well by the scrappy Kentucky line.

Coach Graves started his second team and the first quarter was scoreless, the reserves failing to gain ground consistently. Gains that were made were often nullified by penalties.

As the opening quarter ended Wilberforce had reached Kentucky's four-yard line on fourth down. Mitchell was stopped for no gain on a line plunge and Givens kicked out from behind the goal line to his own forty.

The regulars were inserted into the fray in the second period but they were slow getting started and the first half ended scoreless.

The first down touchdown came in the third period. Using off-tackle and "spinner" plays, the "Force" registered the first marker on a march that climaxed in Tynes plunging across for a touchdown toward the end of the period. Scurry place-kicked the extra point.

Kentucky's line weakened in the fourth quarter under the battering thrusts of Tynes, Lucas and Thornhill. Following a series of line plays alternating with sweeping end runs Tynes again carrying the ball across the final chalk mark. Scurry's place-kick for the extra point was blocked.

Both teams were guilty of frequent fumbles. Kentucky recorded only one first down. Penalties cost Wilberforce seventy yards and Kentucky fifteen.

The line play of Wilberforce reflected the absence of Nixon, regular guard, and Mendenhall and Fowler, regular ends, who warmed the bench because of injuries received in the Howard game a week ago.

It was the fifth victory of the season for Wilberforce, which has an inter-sectional game with Simmons University at Louisville, Ky., next Saturday. Lineups: Wilberforce (13) Pos. (0) Robinson l. e. NOTRE DAME WINS IN COLORFUL BATTLE

The Notre Dame-Southern California battle that drew 123,000 people to Soldier's Field, Chicago and the traditional meeting between Yale and Princeton at New Haven were two of the most colorful football games of Saturday. Photo shows an exciting moment in the Notre Dame-Southern California game which the Irish won 13 to 12. In the picture, Apsit, Trojan halfback, is shown as he received a pass from Duffield to run thirty yards for the Westerner's first touchdown in the first quarter.

HOME CADETS END SEASON WITH VICTORY OVER SCHOOL OF DEAF

The O. S. and S. O. Home football team climaxed a successful season in a successful manner by triumphing over the eleven representing the Columbus state school of deaf, 13 to 7 in a fiercely fought game on the Home gridiron Saturday afternoon.

Captain R. Yowell, halfback, carried the ball over for both of the quarter and fullback McKinley added the extra point once. Thereafter the Home was held scoreless while the Columbus eleven scored one touchdown in the third period and the added point came on a drop-kick.

Despite the score, the cadets were more superior than it would appear for the Home was on the offensive a greater part of the game. Handicapped in a majority of the games by lack of weight, the Home experienced one of the most successful seasons from the standpoint of games won and lost in the history of the institution.

Four games were won, two were tied and two were lost, the cadets scoring a total of forty-four points against thirty-seven for opponents.

Prof. Seall's proteges dropped games to Xenia Central and Cedarville High but lost to the Bucs through inexperience and to Cedarville through over-confidence, otherwise their escutcheon would probably not have been marred.

The leading game of the season was with Wilmington High and a scoreless tie was played with the Quaker eleven, which subsequently defeated Xenia Central 31 to 12. Lineups: Home (13) Pos. "Wonderful Preparation for Varicose Ulcers"

Bangor, Me.—"Some time ago my right leg was in a terrible state where the veins had burst, causing varicose ulcers. Was told I would have to go to the hospital, but I couldn't do that so I tried many different remedies and prescribed treatments, but found no relief. I was very discouraged until I tried Resinol Ointment. I think it is the most wonderful preparation for varicose ulcers, and I wish everyone knew about it. An ulcer is a very stubborn thing to heal, but patience and Resinol Ointment will do the work." (Signed)—Mrs. NELLIE E. CURTIS.

INDIAN FIGHTER IS HELPING TO REVIVE WOODCARVING ART

CONNEAUT, O., Nov. 18.—Woodcarving became a lost art decades ago in this country, but Edgar S. Stewart, 67, one-time Indian fighter and now an inmate of the Ohio Penitentiary, has decided to revive the art.

At the same time his carvings tend to focus attention on the pioneers of this country and their mode of living, as most of all his work depicts scenes of Abraham Lincoln's time.

Stewart pursues his art the nine months of the year that he spends in the Military Home. The summer months he spends here with his son, Carl Stewart.

In an inconspicuous corner of the Occupational Therapy Department of the Dayton Home, Stewart has a complete workshop, fashioned from an old wardrobe. Here, with his jack-knives, hammers, chisels and other tools, he finds contentment.

Across the front of the improvised work-bench is a sign which reads:

"Stewart's Miniature Antique and Historic Toyland."

Stewart likes nothing better than to show visitors his handiwork and explain to them the life and customs of the pioneers.

All his reproductions of pioneering scenes are exacted to the smallest detail. One of his exhibits is a complete set of colonial furniture. There is the typical old four-poster bed, the old stone fireplace, before which sits a Dutch kettle, a churn, a candle mould and a mixing bowl. There is also a sooty crane, andirons and tongs.

In another corner of the miniature colonial household there is a spinning wheel, a reel and other devices used by the pioneer mothers.

In his younger and more prosperous days Stewart owned a horse and gig, at that time, one of the finest on the road. The horse has been dead many years but he has been recreated in wood, hitched to a replica of the red and black gig of bygone days.

Stewart's collection contains in excess of 120 pieces.

"Why do I do it? Because it's lots of fun. You'll never know what joy there is in it until you've tried it," Stewart asserted.

TO BE REINSTATED

DELAWARE, O., Nov. 18.—Members of the Omicron Delta Kappa, senior honorary fraternity and six students in probation after alleged telling of risqué jokes in a musical show at Ohio Wesleyan University, will be reinstated Thanksgiving Day, according to William A. Sanders, dean of men at the school.

OH, SHUT UP! YOU DON'T NEED THAT SUIT TO-NIGHT—YOU ARE GOING TO WEAR YOUR OLD CLOTHES AND GO TO THE OPERA WITH ME.

I FORGOT ALL ABOUT THAT.

BUT I JUST HAPPENED TO REMEMBER THAT I LEFT THE OPERA TICKETS IN THE SUIT YOUR BROTHER TOOK.

WHAT? THEN WE CAN'T GO.

COTTON STOCKINGS

by ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY

Author of "THE FLAT TIRE"

Copyright, 1929, by Central Press Association, Inc.

READ THIS FIRST:

Rosalie March, seventeen, secures a position at the hosiery counter of a store through the kindness of Kenessa Du Barry, actress. She is adored by her landlady, Mother Murphy, and little Tim O'Hara, the corner newsie. Rosalie discovers a run in her only pair of silk stockings. She wears an old cotton pair to the store, much to the amusement of the salesgirls. In desperation, she decides to take a silk pair from stock and make good for them pay day. She drops them and is observed by Alberto Martino, the store detective, who threatens to arrest her unless she agrees to hide some suitcases in her room for him. Rosalie is frightened and agrees. In the meantime Roy Clarke Andrews, nephew of the owner of the store, falls in love with Rosalie and asks her to marry him. Rosalie is called to the store. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXV

It was a girl's voice and it sounded far off and muffled.

Rosalie was nonplussed at the girl's "guess who this is" that came to her.

Oh, Ann Schultz! The girl giggled and Rosalie was reassured.

"How would you like to do something you've never done in your life before?"

"What is it?" Rosalie asked her uncertainly. She couldn't imagine Ann calling her.

Again Ann giggled as though it were a great lark.

"There are a bunch of us out at the Barnes flying field, Rosalie, and we are going for a ride in a big plane. You must come out and go with us."

Roy was standing in the door and he heard Rosalie say, as though she might be a little disappointed.

"Oh, Ann, I'd love to, really, but I have company."

"Bring him along."

"But—but I can't."

"Wait a minute," Roy called softly, and went down to the next flight and asked her what it was all about.

"There is a bunch from the store going on an airplane ride. Ann Schultz wants us to come out."

He hesitated thoughtfully. Well, it wouldn't be long until the whole world would know that he was going to marry Rosalie, anyway. He liked flying and he thought it would be just the thing to cheer her up.

"Would you like to go dear?" he said then. "If you would, tell her we'll be out in about fifteen minutes."

It would be amusing if it was a store crowd to see their surprise when he came out with Rosalie. He had never been conventional or class-conscious as long as people were amusing and he wanted to be with them.

Tim was at his stand when they drove by. He had never seen Roy Andrews with Rosalie before and his jaw dropped with surprise.

Then his heart burned with jealousy. That swell car and all that money—and Andrews so good looking and everything! He was only a muddle of freckles and red hair. No matter what he could ever do for Queen she would never think as much of a guy like him as of a rich and keen looking like Roy!

Then Tim decided that a rich man who went out with a poor, unprotected girl like Rosalie was out for no good. He doubled his fist and squared his jaw again. That might be another bird he'd have to take a sock at.

Tim was beginning to take his role of protector with great seriousness. What he could ever mean to Rosalie was very vague in his mind. But he meant always to have her for his girl in his heart and take care of her.

No knight in shining armor could have excelled the pugnacious little Irish newsboy in bravery or determination at that moment. Rosalie was his shining star—and he was her bulwark through anything that might come to her.

Rosalie sat in the car beside Roy smiling to herself at the surprise in store for Ann. When she saw her with Roy Andrews she would just plumb give up the ghost! How wonderful it was of him to take her to meet the store crowd who would know the truth now.

They passed a rambling low bungalow at a cross roads. It had shiny white paint and green shutters that gleamed in the light that struck it from the car. Rosalie thought it was just what she would like for her own home. She smiled shyly up at him.

"Did you see that little house? Isn't it homely and cozy?"

"I've always liked it," he assented, smiling. "I bet I thought the same thing you did."

"What? You tell me and I'll tell you."

He whispered as though it were a great secret.

"I thought—that is the kind of a little house I want for us."

Her heart swelled with happiness, and her teeth showed in the shy little grin he loved when she admitted that it was exactly what she had been thinking. Her love was still so new and so hard to imagine that she felt self-conscious every time he looked at her in his intimate, happy way. She wanted so much to touch him all of the time—but she held back with a reserve he adored.

Sometimes her coming position as his wife overwhelmed her. How could she ever learn all the things she would have to learn in order to be the gracious hostess and the clever wife a man of his standing would simply have to have. She knew he thought her perfect. He had told her so. But if he knew how much she didn't know!

Why, she would have to buy all sorts of books and magazines and read and read for the next few weeks so that she would know how to do it.

She looked at him with wide, puzzled eyes.

"You think he will not approve of your marrying a girl like me. Oh—maybe he won't."

He grinned at her then and bent and kissed her.

"We have a lot of plans to make, Rosalie. The most interesting thing I have to do yet is break the news to Uncle Peter. That will have to be done very cleverly."

"It just happens that Uncle Peter isn't marrying you, my sweet. Poor old fellow!"

"You mean—you'd marry me anyway?"

"Oh, bless your heart! But—would you marry a poor man, providing he throws me out of my job and refuses to keep the wolf from our door, even though I am entitled to his fortune?"

Her little nose went into the air with a sniff.

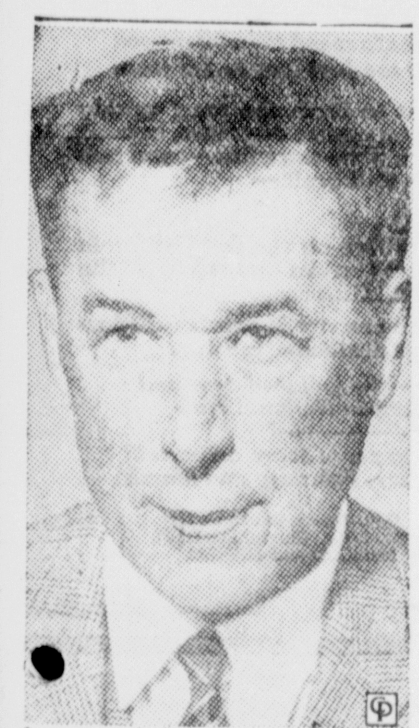

"As if I money makes any difference to ME. I'd rather you didn't have any, so little and dear."

The Theater

Chicago gunmen, district attorneys and newspaper reporters who speak perfect French will soon be put on the Paris stage in an effort to make French dramatists "snap out of it."

They will be actors in "The Front Page," the play of Chicago newspaper life, which was so popular in this country last winter. Camille Wyn has purchased the French rights. He believes that theater-goers are suffering from indigestion on account of sexy dramas and the newspaper play is one of the number of quick-action pieces with which he hopes to pep up the appetite of the Parisian public.

Wyn's decision comes on the heels of a protest against the "American invasion," directed at a troupe from the United States with a repertoire of Broadway hits by the Society of Authors and Playwrights.

"Exchanges of ideas must now come entirely from America until Paris retains some prestige in the theater," he said. "Parisians want guts in a play—not the superficial love matches and literary hors d'oeuvres that make up the modern French stage tradition."

Although Tom Mix is gone his western presence still lingers on the Fox lot. For a time after his departure the Fox outfit abandoned westerns. They produced "Old Arizona," a western of sorts but different and it was a box office lulu.

It started the high moguls to thinking and now they're going to make westerns again. There is talk of lining up a lot of Zane Grey yarns and punching them into talkies. George O'Brien, seen here last week in "Noah's Ark," turns open-space with a vengeance in "The Lone Star Ranger" and may make some more. In westerns of the type of "Old Arizona" he would undoubtedly click, but not in westerns that unroll the same old story. Send for the miracle man but keep a sharp look-out, nature and horses will still be manna to the celluloid.

Modern westerns, therefore, might again be successful. It is interesting to note that while the westerns were attributed to such actors as Tom Mix, Hoot Gibson, Bill Hart and others, Jack Holt, who does not rank as a western star, has been in Zane Grey stories. He is a civil engineer and worked at his profession in the west and in Alaska before becoming a screen player, his first movie job being to jump a horse from a thirty-foot cliff into deep water.

The street at Main and Detroit Sts. will be torn up for a few days while the Springfield and Xenia Traction Co. repairs its tracks at that point. For the first time in many years the little village of Yellow Springs can boast of a hotel. Its proprietor is Frank McClain, the restaurant man. Inauguration of the Rev. J. H. Webster as professor of Greek, Exegesis and New Testament Literature at the Xenia Theological Seminary will take place this evening. Wilmington is planning to have a home-coming and a committee organized for that purpose has written J. F. Orr, this city, for advice in making arrangements.

XENIA LUTHERANS ATTEND SESSIONS OF LUTHER LEAGUE

"What shall I do with my life?" was the theme of the southern conference of the Luther League of the Synod of Ohio held in the First Lutheran Church, Urbana, Friday evening and Saturday.

There were 120 registered delegates representing the southwestern part of Ohio in attendance. Springfield, Dayton, and Xenia were most represented and had the most delegates present for all the meetings. The following eight persons represented the League from the Xenia Lutheran Church: Mary Maxwell, Helen Nichols, Alice Davis, Katherine Maxwell, Phyllis Mellage, Alice Gordon, Carey Maxwell and the Rev. Adrian G. Lehold.

Officers elected for the coming year include: president, Mazie Swearingen, member of the Fourth Lutheran Church, Springfield; vice president, Lloyd Schroy, of the First Lutheran Church, Dayton; secretary, Alice Gordon, First Lutheran, Xenia; and treasurer, Paul E. Miller, St. Luke's, Springfield. These officers are subject to re-election at the next convention.

Among the principal speakers were: the Rev. F. F. Secrist, pastor of the Second Trinity Church, Dayton, who delivered the opening address on the theme, "Take my life and let it be consecrated, Lord, to Thee." The Lord's Supper was administered by Rev. Knox Roberts, pastor of the First Lutheran Church of Urbana, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Secrist, Friday evening.

John W. Rilling, New Castle, Ind., senior in Hamma Divinity School, Springfield, opened the Saturday session with the meditation on, "Take my voice and let me sing." Roger Imhoff, Dayton, followed this with a review of Conde's book, "Human Element in the Making of a Christian." Dr. E. E. Flack and Dr. W. K. Gotwald, professors in Wittenberg College made brief addresses on, "Take my heart," and "Take my will," respectively.

The Rev. Rudolph Schulz, Jr., executive secretary of the Luther League of Ohio, Columbus, made a graphic and illustrative presentation of the Porto Rican objective. He also conducted an interesting round table discussion in which many of the problems of young people's organizations were considered. The Rev. Mr. Schulz is anticipating visiting Porto Rico in the interests of the Ohio Luther League during the Christmas holidays.

One of the interesting features of the afternoon program was a demonstration of junior and intermediate work done in the Oesterlen Orphan Home in Springfield. Miss Phyllis Glenn, Springfield, and Ralph Lowe, Columbus, were in charge of this part of the program. The idea conveyed the practicability of League work in both junior and intermediate young people of the church.

Robert G. Remsburg, of the Fourth Lutheran League, Springfield, presided as toastmaster at a banquet which ended the conference. The Rev. C. L. Veneble, pastor of the First Lutheran Church, Dayton, was the principal speaker. He spoke in the absence of I. F. Mellinger, Lexington, who was absent on account of family illness.

Westwood Lutheran Church, Dayton, of which the Rev. Howard I. Possespel is pastor, will be host to the conference at its next annual meeting, sometime during the autumn of 1930.

COUNTY TAX DUPLICATE SHOWS INCREASE

Greene County's 1929 tax duplicate amounts to $57,306,810, an increase of $945,220 over the 1928 duplicate, according to County Auditor P. H. Creswell.

The increase of nearly one million dollars is partly due, it is explained, to construction of new business buildings and residences which become taxable property for the first time this year, but is largely attributed to a substantial increase in public utility valuations, including new power and cable lines valued at many thousands of dollars.

The following table shows the 1929 tax duplicate of every taxing district in Greene County. The first column presents the duplicate of each township, including villages; the second column shows the duplicate of the township without the figures for villages; the third column contains the village duplicates, the fourth duplicates of school districts and the fifth, total duplicates of all districts.

ASHTABULA COUNTY HAS YOUNG MAYORS

ASHTABULA, O., Nov. 18.—Ashtabula County does not want it said that within her confines at least, age takes too much privilege. The county claims two of the youngest, if not the youngest, mayors in the United States.

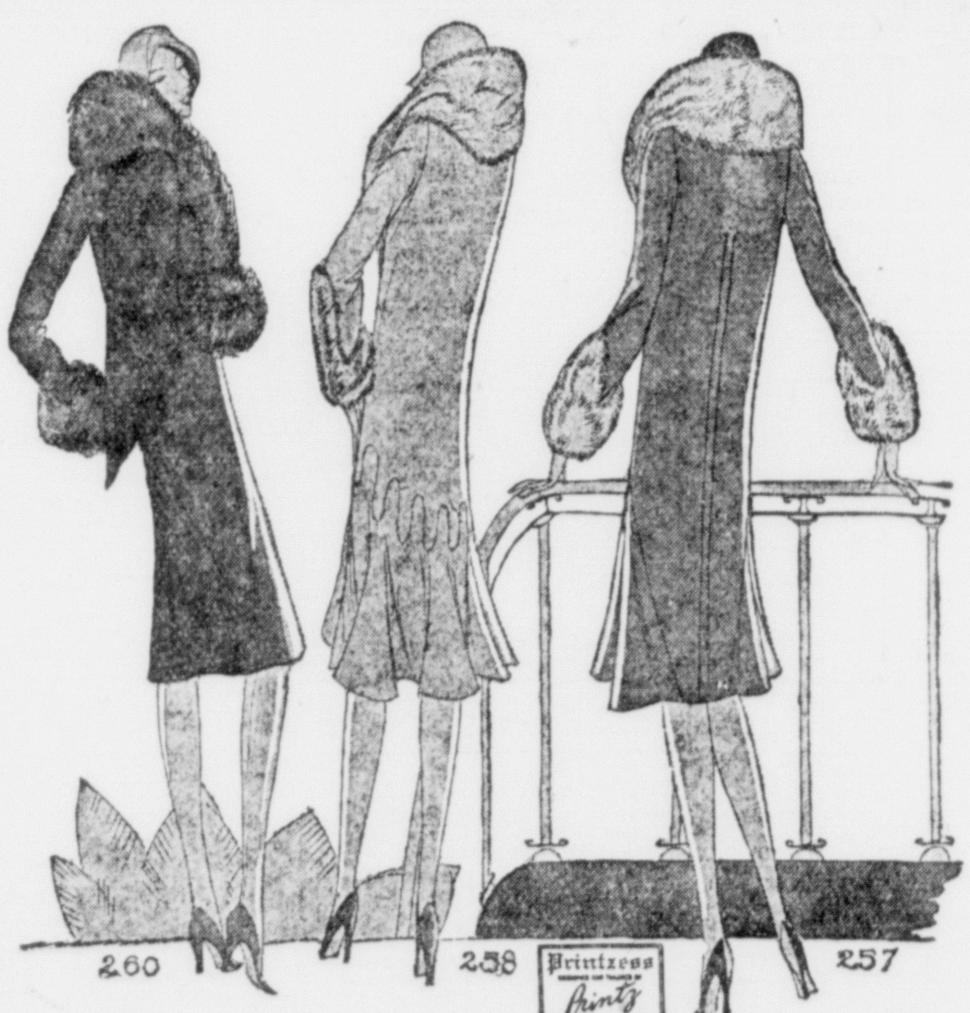

Harold Fowler, 28, was re-elected to his second term as mayor of North Kingsville in the recent elections, retaining his office by a large majority over his opponent. Geneva-on-the-Lake voters, rallying a 25-year-old student as their favorite, placed Howard Warner, a recent college graduate, in office at the head of the village government. The election provided a testimonial, it was said, to Warner's integrity and dissipated the time-worn viewpoint of youth as incapable of holding public office.

Fowler, back in 1927, was lifted into office after only five days of campaigning. It was recalled. He had not filed candidacy papers even, and it was necessary to write his name in on the ballot.

SCHOOL PATRONS EXPECTED TO ATTEND HEARING WITH CLIFTON

Faced with the prospect of sending their children into some other district in order for them to obtain an accredited high school education next year, many residents of Beaver Creek and Caesarcreek Twp. are expected to come to Xenia Tuesday afternoon for a public hearing at which steps toward providing an education for high school pupils of the two districts will be discussed.

The public hearing was arranged following action of Dr. J. L. Clifton, state director of education, in revoking the charters of the Beaver Creek and Caesarcreek Twp. district high schools, effective at the close of the present school term, after voters, at the recent election, turned down bond issues designed to finance school improvements.

Director Clifton will be present at the hearing, which is assigned for 1 o'clock, probably in the common pleas courtroom.

Beaver Creek Twp. voters rejected a proposed bond issue of $155,000 for erection of a consolidated school building and Caesarcreek Twp. turned down a $55,000 proposal to build an addition to its high school.

School authorities say that in view of the revocation of the charters, the townships will probably have to bear the expense of transporting high school pupils into a district having a recognized high

PRISONER WAGERS TOBACCO ON SNOOK

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 18.—An Ohio State Penitentiary prisoner has laid a plug of tobacco against the possibility that Dr. James H. Snook will escape the electric chair on November 29.

The wager is indicative of a general change of judgment at the prison regarding the probable fate of the condemned veterinary professor.

A recurrence of keen interest in the fate of the slayer of Theora Hix, Ohio State University co-ed, has been noted.

Decision of the court on the question of a new trial for the professor should be known within the next few days.

Meanwhile Dr. Snook, apparently is not anxious. He reads, writes and eats well.
